WHEN SLEEVES NEED LENGTHENING

Add Piece To Match The Cuff

WHEN a coat has been lengthened with a strip of different material, large cuffs to match the strip give a fashionable touch and also enable an extra inch or so to be added to the sleeves. This is often needed in a child's coat. Remove the straps, cuffs, or stiffening with which the sleeves have been finished, but do not unstitch the seams; let down the turnings and press flat. If the sleeves are to be lengthened, add a piece of material to match the new cuffs, making the seam on the inside. Turn up the edges, tack them, and press them heavily. Should there be a lining, hem this over the sleeves hem, lengthening it, if necessary, in order to do so; hem an unlined sleeve down with bias binding. Cut the new cuffs to the shape wanted, noting that they must fit easily over the coat sleeves, and line them with silk or self material. Leave the lower edges until the last, then turn them up one inch, insert a piece of stiffening if the material is thin, and hem down the lining. Push the sleeves into the cuffs, seam to seam, allowing them to extend half an inch, sew them to the sleeve ends, and also from the inside, half an inch higher up. This stitching must be loosely though firmly done.

LACES IN MANY COLOURS

Bride's Demand For "Something Blue" Satisfied

LACES, by the way, are as varied as the flowers in a June garden. You do not have to stick to plain white or the ubiquitous dark tan tones. There are, in addition to platinum, shades of dark brown and yellowish brown. On tea rose, yellow, blue and white fabrics, these are sure to thrill the heart of any young bride.

She will be pleased, too, by heart-shaped anchors to put between layers of underwear, linens and the like. One nice little sachet, of blue satin with pleated frill of chiffon, looks like a tiny pillow and smells like a bank of fresh June roses. It matches the blue satin garters that satisfy the bride's demand for "something blue" to bring her luck. They are trimmed with padded hearts of blue satin that dangle from pink sweetheart roses.

SUMMER COATS

Lined With Print And Worn Over Frocks

PARIS has solved the difficulty of looking smart and feeling cool in town by putting little coats over summer frocks made of the same material. These give the ensemble the effect of a tailored suit. Taken off, they reveal the frock in all its summer gaiety. Flowered cardigans worn over dark colours are variations of the same idea. Made in a small sprig pattern on a white ground, they are reminiscent of the design beloved by our grandmothers for draping their dressing tables.

Another idea for the summer coat is to line your swaggar coat with the frock material. Printed dresses, for instance, have plain coats lined with print, while the same effect is achieved with flowered silk and spotted material used for the frock and lining.

JABOTS NOT ALWAYS MADE OF ORGANDIE

JABOTS are not always of organdie or lace. The silver and gilt head variety is modernistic and smart, and in a way combined the role of dress jewellery with that of jabot.

AN EXCELLENT DRESS SUGGESTION

If you are very narrow round the hips a printed crepe dress with a flared basque below the belt would make you look bigger. Or you can have a basque which is flared only over the hips and is flat back and front.

MASSAGING ROUND THE EYES

The Correct Method

THE correct way to massage round the eyes is to start at the corner of the nose and, with the second and third fingers, tap outwards over the eyelids and inwards below the eyes towards the nose, making a complete circle.

TROUSSEAU LINGERIE

Night Gowns Resemble Evening Dresses

LACE FASHIONS

WHEN she picks her trousseau lingerie, this season's bride follows the same rules she applies in selecting the wedding gown and the trousseau clothes. "The" set is white. The others are likely to be peach, tea rose, pink and blue.

Dripping with lace and made of the finest silks and satins, bridal slips, panties and nightgowns look as though they had been designed for a fairy princess. The laces are real, of course, and the lines of the filmy garments themselves are as carefully cut as Paris evening gowns.

There are nightgowns that closely resemble evening dresses. Most of them have V necklines, bias-cut skirts and wide shoulder bands of lace that form diminutive cape sleeves. Of course, for tall brides, there are models, without lace, that depend on exquisite fabrics and dainty appliqued motifs for glamour.

WHITE GOES ON

Simplicity The Keynote This Season

BRIGHTLY coloured frocks look almost demode this season with whites, creams and pale yellows so much in the foreground. Simplicity too, is the keynote of chic—demure collars, plain large brimmed hats and rather full skirts.

A TOILET RECIPE

Cucumber Juice Useful For Rough Arms

HERE is a good mixture for getting rid of the roughness on the back of the arms. Press a cucumber into juice and whip it with half a pint of olive oil. For the older woman, mix the cucumber with almond oil and work this into the arms after they have been scrubbed with a loofah.

COLOUR SCHEMES

To Suit Eyes, Skin And Hair

WHAT TO AVOID

ONE cannot be dogmatic about colours. The relation of eyes and skin and hair, forming a colour "value," determine what is becoming; and very few and far between are the women who cannot look in a mirror and decide if a costume's colour suits them. But so far as one may generalise, these rules obtain:

White and gray hair are not well suited by brown—though luminous brown eyes may justify its use even with such hair. Black is becoming to the very fair and the very dark. Navy and positive greens are good for middle types with clear skins. Pastels are lovely with soft flesh tones. Yellow must be forgotten by middle age. Yellow-reds are good for pale skins and pure white hair; blue-reds usually look better on in-between types. Violets, so fashionable just now, are rather universally suited to the tones which maturity introduces into hair, skin and eyes.

PREVAILING COLOUR COMBINATION

Pink And Zinnia The Latest Vogue

PREVAILING colour combinations in linens and cottons include reseda green, worn with chamomile-coloured accessories; raspberry and navy, set off by white; red, blue and yellow, accented by white; mauve, yellow and pink, with any one of these tones used for accessories; wine-red with pale pink accessories; navy with tones of baby-blue; black with natural yellow or red; tulip-pink with turquoise; and, newest of all, pink and zinnia.

AFTERNOON DRESS

Designed Particularly For The Matron

THE afternoon dress, designed particularly for the matron, is made of flowered lawn. It is given a separate jacket, open and boxy, and the skirt is pleated in a front panel. The frill trimming on the collar and jabot-like front of the bodice is justifiable on this type of dress, which may get through a season without laundering, or, at worst, with one or two tub experiences.

The swaggar coat, fashioned of a smart striped cotton coating, presents only flat planes to the iron, and is dramatised by a removable silk bow.

Dainty Little Cakes Make Tea-Time Treat

By Doris Tisdale,

Royal Baking Institute

SMALL, sweet cakes are always popular. They are attractive at luncheon or at the tentable—and they make a perfect complement served with ice cream, blanc mange or a gelatin dessert.

For perfect little cakes—as in all cakes—it is important to use only the finest quality ingredients. Baking powder, especially, makes a difference and experts advise Royal for the best results. Royal is always uniform, always dependable. You can count on it for light, delicious cakes every time!

Suggestions for Attractive Little Cakes

The tested recipe for Royal Little Cakes (see Royal Cook Book) lends itself to many tempting variations—

You can't get interesting little cakes by baking in a sheet pan and cutting into different shapes.

Cover with Crystal Sugar coating and decorate with designs made of pieces of fruit.

Ice with Crystal Sugar coating and sprinkle with "eight precious."

Candied fruits—cherries, citron, dates, all make attractive decorations.

Put a spoonful of jam or jelly in each pan when you put in the batter and you get dainty little surprise cakes.

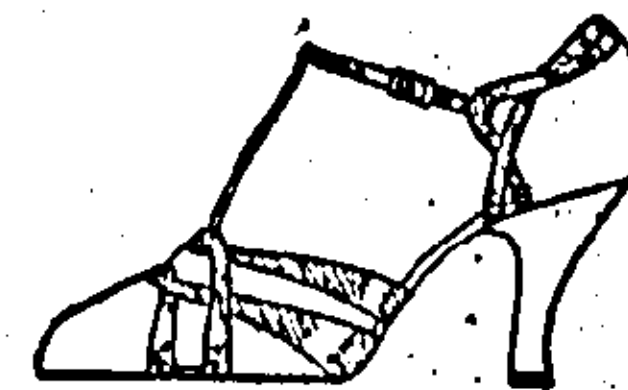

Spice Drops.
Cream 6 tablespoons butter or lard, add 1/2 cup sugar, 1 egg and 1/2 cup molasses; mix well. Sift together 1 1/2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder, 1/4 teaspoon soda, 1/3 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon; add alternately with 1/4 cup milk. Add 1 cup seeded raisins; mix well. Drop from spoon on greased baking sheet; bake in moderate oven (350° F. or oven hot enough to brown a small piece of white, unglazed paper in 1 1/2 min.) about 10 minutes. Makes 3 dozen.

MISS SCRIVEN LOSES IN STRAIGHT SETS CHILEAN STAR BOWS TO MISS STAMMERS

BUDGE ELIMINATES BOUSSUS

Wimbledon, Yesterday.

THE first big upset at Wimbledon was provided in the Third Round of the Ladies' Singles championship when Mrs. Fearnley-Whittingstall (nee Eileen Bennett), who only a few months ago almost decided to retire from first-class tennis, defeated Miss Peggy Scriven, one of the three seeded British contenders, in straight sets. Miss Scriven recently lost her French title, when beaten by Mme. Mathieu.

Another upset was caused by Miss Katherine Stammers, the British hardcourt champion and conqueror of Mrs. Moody, who recorded the best performance of her career when she beat the Chilean star, Senorita Anita Lizana, in straight sets.

DORSETSHIRE BEAT RADIO IN HOCKEY GAME

Scratch Elevens Give Good Display

LANE AND ACKERY SHOW PROMISING FORM

A scratch eleven from H.M.S. Dorsetshire beat a team from the Radio Sports Club by an only goal in a fast hockey game at Carline Hill yesterday, the outstanding feature in which was the excellent work of the ship's right-wing, comprising Lt. Lane and Sub. Lt. Ackery, the latter being given a Navy trial at home.

M. H. Haslam, the brilliant Radio pivot, who has completely recovered from a fractured ankle sustained in a League football encounter, made a remarkable after a long absence, but was not impressive.

Although Sarngat Singh, the Radio leader, dazzled with some very clever stickwork, he was, as usual, much too selfish and was to a great extent responsible for the Radio's downfall. He attempted three solo efforts to score when passes inwards would have probably resulted in three goals.

Lt. Baker, the Dorsetshire's pivot, played a very fine spilling game, while his distribution left nothing to be desired. He was, however, badly supported on the flanks, Thomas and Nicholls being inclined to wander.

Scrutten and Comdr. Garde were given plenty to do, but were not very reliable, although Garde was much the better of the two and often brought off a neat interception.

Fine Combination

Lt. Ackery and Lt. Lane were by far the best combination on the field, the latter's speed being phenomenal, while his accuracy in centring is as good as has been seen in the Colony. It was only U. B. Souza's brilliant goal-keeping and kicking that saved the Radio from a greater defeat.

INTERESTING LAWN BOWLS ENCOUNTERS

Experienced Players Drawn Together

CHAMPIONS ON VIEW THIS WEEK

Many good games in the Colony Lawn Bowls Singles Championships are down for decision this week and it is expected that many of the pairs matches will also be played off.

The most exciting game on Tuesday will probably be the one between J. C. Brown of the Bowling Green and H. Rosario, who obtained an overwhelming victory over J. J. Whyte, the Taikoo veteran, in the previous round. Although Brown has an advantage over his opponent in experience, Rosario is playing superior bowls.

C. J. Tacchi, who surprisingly defeated C. B. Hosking in the previous round, meets a formidable rival in H. Overy.

A close game should take place on Wednesday when A. M. Holland, a former champion, meets his clubmate, P. T. Farrell, on the Recreation green. Although Holland is expected to win, Farrell is generally agreed to be a good singles player and will make a bold bid for victory.

Omar Playing On Thursday

On Thursday U. M. Omar, twice the holder of the singles title, meets J. V. Ramsey, while other good games on this day will be between J. K. Sloan, the young, though accomplished electric player, and E. el Arculli, and that between H. A. Alves and M. Y. Adal. R. F. Luz and H. Beer, one of the favoured pairs for this year's title, meet another good couple in C. G. Silva and F. X. Silva on Tuesday. The following day the holders, F. J. Jones and A. W. Grimmit, play M. J. Medina and J. Cavanagh, of Craignower.

UNEXPECTED RESULT AT VALLEY

WARD'S RINK SET NEW RECORD

CRAIGENGOWER JUNIORS IN DEADLY MOOD

DESPITE C. G. Silva's brilliant effort to save his team, the Club de Recreio suffered their first setback yesterday when they fell victims to the Police by two shots in the premier lawn bowls league. They, however, still hold the premier position in the League table by virtue of the fact that they have played one more game than the champions.

Craignower had the enviable distinction of being successful in all three games. R. F. Luz was the only Craignower skip to go down, but the combined efforts of U. M. Omar and B. W. Bradbury succeeded in making up the deficit to give their team victory by 9 shots.

The "B" team enjoyed an overwhelming success over Kowloon Docks, beating them by 34 shots, while the junior team won by 55 shots.

By beating J. Purvis' rink by 32 shots, W. Ward's Craignower four (W. English, W. Atkins and W. Phelps) created a new record for Second Division rinks this season. J. Cavanagh was another skip whose rink won by a large margin, defeating J. McKelvie's rink by 25 shots. Sixes were registered yesterday by rinks skipped by G. E. F. Thompson, A. Brooksbank, and W. Ward.

PERRY WINS TITLE EQUALS RECORD IN BRITISH OPEN GOLF TOURNEY

HENRY COTTON
SEVENTH
LAWSON LITTLE LEADING AMERICAN

Muirfield, Yesterday. Alfred Perry, of Leatherhead, won the British Open Golf Championship here yesterday with a score of 283, thus equaling the record.

Perry, who is the second British champion in as many years, had a record third round of 67, while his other rounds were 69, 75 and 72.

A member of the successful British Ryder Cup team at Southport in 1933, Perry thus recorded his first major golfing success.

Sunshine, tempered by a stiff south-westerly breeze, made ideal weather conditions for the final day's play.

Alfred Padgham, of Sundridge Park, was second with 287, his rounds comprising 70, 72, 74 and 71, while Charles Whitcombe, of Crofts Hill, who led at the end of the second round was third with rounds of 71, 68, 73 and 70.

The fourth place was shared by Bert Gadd, of Brand Hall, who turned in cards of 72, 75, 71 and 71, and W. Lawson Little, the British Amateur champion and the first American placed, who had rounds of 75, 71, 74 and 69. Henry Picard, who was thought to be America's most dangerous challenger, in the absence of Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen, was sixth, while Henry Cotton, the former holder, was seventh, and Sid Easterbrook eighth.

DERBYSHIRE'S BOLD BID FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

DEFEAT LANCASHIRE BY 7 RUNS
AT OLD TRAFFORD
IDDON'S PLUCKY INNINGS

London, Yesterday. YORKSHIRE, determined to regain the county cricket championship they last won in 1933, overwhelmed Glamorgan at Bradford yesterday to displace Warwickshire in the race for the title, but Derbyshire, whose one and only championship success was in 1874, consolidated their position at the head of the table by defeating Lancashire, the 1934 champions, in an exciting finish. Requiring 320 in the fourth innings to win, Lancashire failed by only 8 runs.

Lancashire's defeat was their second in succession and fourth of the season—Leicester, Middlesex and Essex were the three other victors.

Sutcliffe revealed refreshing form on the eve of the Test at Lord's, taking part in a three-figure stand with Barber, a young professional. His 121 was his fourth century of the season, his others being 135 not out against Glamorgan, 200 not out v. Worcester, and 110 v. Kent, in addition to 91 v. Derby and 61 for England at Trent Bridge. Barber had previously scored 107 against Middlesex.

Iddon, who played in the first Test at Trent Bridge, played a fighting innings for Lancashire, his 131 representing his second three-figure innings this season—he scored 124 against Leicester.

FASTEST ACROSS ATLANTIC

Friendly Rivalry Of Great Liners Splendid Performances By Ships Of Past

(By Captain Frank H. Shaw)

YET another competitor for the Blue Riband of the Atlantic entered the race this month, and secured the coveted distinction.

She was the great French liner Normandie, the latest of a noble line.

The first notable record for the Atlantic crossing was made in 1838, when the Sirius did the journey in 17 days, under steam and sail combined. The same year the Great Western made the crossing in 15 days.

Battle was joined. It has persisted since. Its story makes one of the proudest chapters in the history of the sea.

The next page in the chapter was written in February-March, 1839, by the Black Ball sailing packet Dreadnought. She crossed from Sandy Hook to Liverpool in 13 days 8 hours, which, considering the time of year and the weather encountered, was miraculous. This famous clipper, known as The Wild Boat of the Atlantic, thundered through or under everything the Atlantic could breed in the way of hard weather; her skipper cracking on sail until it blew away, and then dragging the ruins in his tempestuous wake.

Thereafter to lower existing records, westbound or eastbound, became the ambition of most of the great maritime countries. The ambition resulted not only in astonishing speeds, but in more astonishing seamanship and stability.

Old Windjammers

An epic might be written on the windjammer racing of the spacious days; but interest centres properly in the stern rivalry between steamship-owners. This rivalry reached its height when the Cunard and White Star Lines came into opposition.

There was a ding-dong fight for years, until the White Star Line retired. From the contest, its proudest ships beaten by the Campania and Lucania, and devoted itself to comfort, size and safety. During the fight the high art of shipbuilding reached a height hitherto unimagined. Speed and strength combined to create beauty.

The Cunarder Britannia created a record in 1840, crossing the Atlantic a fraction under the Great Western's record. In 1843 the Cambria again reduced the crossing time, by a day, and the contest was again in full swing.

These were small ships, trifling ships, smaller than the coastwise craft which take seaside trippers for day-long cruises to-day. In addition to making high speed, they had to bear the worst weather in the world, for an Atlantic crossing is frequently an unbroken story of hideous conditions, during which those small ships acted more like submarines than surface craft.

When I crossed in the record-breaking Etruria in the opening years of this century, we invariably smashed the bridge to matchwood, flattened the ventilators, and, on one occasion, swept the forecastle bell like a six-inch shell into the woodwork of the captain's cabin under the bridge, where it stuck.

A Revelation
In 1851 the Collins liner Pacific—1,500 tons—crossed the Atlantic in 9 days 19 hours 25 minutes, breaking the previous record by more than four days. This was a revelation. America was accessible in less than a fortnight. But it was not until 1862—the Atlantic weather enduring, although ships materially changed—that the Scotia brought the time down to a level nine days. That remained the lowest time for the voyage until 1875, when the Inman liner City of Richmond caused a sensation by landing her passengers in 7 days 19 hours 45 minutes. (The time of crossing was now being reckoned to the minute.)

1882 brought the Gulon ship Alaska—a giant of 6,400 tons—into the race. She justified her size and stability by crossing the Atlantic in 7 days and 17 minutes—just over a week. In 1884 the Oregon, also a Gulon liner, performed what seemed a miracle, and sailed from Liverpool to Sandy Hook in 6 days 10 hours 9 minutes.

Calamities Prophesied
Humanity considered this to be flying in the face of Providence, and forecast a major calamity.

The urge to eclipse previous records only grew more intense. To scratch even a few minutes off the then-existing record was like winning a Derby, so far as public interest went.

The honest old Etruria, diving under water at Queenstown, to emerge at Sandy Hook in less than six days and two hours later, won the Blue Riband from all-comers in 1888, and retained it until the City of Paris, an American ship, crossed in a bare six days. This was a year or more later. Soon after the Teutonic did even better.

Before this the Lucania, a gem of a ship and the pride of the Cunard fleet, had crossed in five days and eight hours. Germany replied with the Deutschland's five days seven hours in 1900. I saw the Deutschland in mid-Atlantic during that run, and very little was visible abaft her funnels as she slugged into a typical Atlantic "snorter."

Arduous Work
Record-breaking was arduous work. It went on with ever greater zest. The gallant Mauretania, ever-young and vigorous, averaged 27.36 knots in 1907, to bring the Blue Riband back to the Red Ensign.

In the Mauretania's keeping it then remained until her sister-ship, the ill-fated Lusitania, wrested it from her in 1908. Victory then was a matter almost of seconds. In 1929 the Mauretania triumphed again, doing two passages, east and west, in, respectively, 4 days 17 hours 49 minutes and 4 days 21 hours 44 minutes. She averaged throughout the voyage a speed of 27.05 knots, which was good for an "old-timer" such as she had then become.

In 1933 the Italian liner Rex covered herself and her country with glory by steaming from Gibraltar to Sandy Hook in 4 days 13 hours 29 minutes, though the record was not claimed as official; and in 1934 the Bremen made the crossing in 58 minutes over that time. The Bremen was in a hurry to land a suffering child and her crew worked with a will for this purpose, showing a spirit that reflects credit on a great sea-faring nation.

Thus the battle—a friendly battle—persists.

Until recently it brought no concrete reward. The Blue Riband was purely imaginary. Then Mr. H. K. Hales, M.P., offered for international competition a trophy which may be exhibited by the victorious ship. It will be for liners what the American's Cup is to yachts, and may be expected to create a greater advance in ship-design than ever before.

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, JUNE 30, 1935.

Co-Operation In The New Territories

IT will be remembered that His Excellency Sir William Peel stated that he had written to invite to Hong Kong an expert on co-operation who had been sent out by the Council of National Service to advise the Nanking Government on the subject of Agricultural Co-operation, which the Honourable Mr. Braga and many other well-wishers of the farmers of the New Territories have either recommended or tried to introduce. It was regrettable that Mr. Strickland, who spoke at the Rotary Club last Tuesday, arrived in Hong Kong only to go into hospital for a couple of weeks; but he was kind enough to devote his convalescence to giving us some good advice; and on his homeward voyage he has undertaken to draft clauses for an Ordinance for the consideration of the Government.

Mr. Strickland showed at once his familiarity with the subject, derived from setting it to work and supervising thousands of co-operative systems in the Indian villages, by his strict limitation of the functions that such societies can be expected to perform, and his insistence on a proper framework of law and regulation, and adequate skilled guidance. Nothing has done more to check the spread of co-operation than hazy ideas about first principles, and misty hopes of Utopia quickly achieved; but with a proper foundation the system should go a long way to bring new courage and prosperity into the lives of the poorer farmers for whom we are responsible in this Colony.

The first condition of usefulness is that a Society shall be formed not only for the poorer men, to whom it will be most useful, but exclusively consisting of men who are of about the same economic level. They must be interested in the Society because they have the same problems to face, and will have to face them in the same way. One rich member may upset the whole scheme, because a man who has more capital will deal with his problems in a way unsuitable to those who have little or none. This is not to say that he is wrong. The well-to-do farmer or shopkeeper is also within the law, but his methods are individualistic.

The second limitation is that the Society must be purely economic, and must not throw on to the supervisor the duties of an advisory expert. He cannot be trained in all the subjects on which advice is required, and mistakes will be resented. If no trained Government adviser is available, the Society can well use its funds to obtain jointly the help of a trained man whose fee would be beyond any individual member; just as it can use its funds for the purchase of a wholesale consignment of fertiliser or anything else.

The third condition is that the object shall be clearly defined. There may be producing Societies or distributing Societies, or for any other purpose that is thwarted by circumstances; but the member should always keep his own freedom of action and responsibility for everything but what his Society sets out to do for him.

It is a good augury of success for a Society to consist of neighbours, because they can meet and discuss and attend to their business without the fatigue of long walks. Loss of touch with the other members leads to a loss of interest.

The most fundamental condition of all is that whatever benefits are available shall be equally available to all members, and that the membership shall be open to all who have kindred interests and are willing to obey the rules. The duty of the supervisor will very largely be to see that the rules are observed, and that anyone who breaks them shall either make good his default or be expelled. In the beginning, simple people often make the mistake of being too lenient with each other. An irregularity is passed over, and the remaining members suffer. It has been the general experience that chaos comes with unexpected suddenness, and the system is blamed.

The object of insisting on this qualification of equal membership very strongly is chiefly that a member alone has personal interest in the success of the Society. If the Society itself will not stick to the rule, the penalty is to be struck off the roll. Mr. Strickland's strongest demand is that from first to last there must be no philanthropy. The aim is to encourage thrift, and success must be built on the interest and self-reliance of the members.

The PASSING HOUR

THE RUBINSTEIN RECITAL

EVEN the Roof Garden seemed too closed in for the packed audience at the Rubinstein Recital on Friday night. It would be presumptuous to estimate the performance of one whose technique is of the highest standard, and who gives so much pleasure to the public by his interpretation, but may we not ask for a little more variety in the programmes? It is not often that we get first-class performers in Hong Kong, but though the concerts are few there was not an item that we had not heard before within the last few months. There is quite naturally a fashion in these things, but would not a little more originality and a wider range be appreciated? For the first half Bach and Beethoven are good, but they were voluminous composers. Then for the second half Chopin, Scriabine's left-hand Nocturne, Albeniz, and Liszt, all represented by the same pieces we have recently heard. And even the encores are familiar—the Spanish Dance and so on. The "Turkish Patrol" is not really a piano piece at all. The most effective rendering was given by the famous Beses of the Barn Brass Band when it won the Brass Band contest at the Crystal Palace years ago, and it has been a standing encore piece ever since. To hear different interpretations of well-known music and have the critical pleasure of comparing them and making up one's mind which one likes best is all very well with Grand Opera, but the bulk of music for the pianoforte that gives permanent pleasure is so great that we think it would be appreciated if the concert-givers would study programmes with the object of avoiding rather than repeating the compositions. This is not to say that Friday's concert was not notably enjoyable.

FILM SUBJECTS

THE emergence of the Cinema within a few years to be the greatest entertainment industry, the most popular amusement and the most powerful means of publicity has naturally produced a quantity of criticism, of which it would be foolish for the Producers to complain. Criticism is evidence of interest, and at one time the absence of it led to a monotony both in subject and performance which reduced the box office to nervous prostration. But it is only fair to the Producers to consider what their problems are and give them a fair chance to find a solution. If the critical public objects to the "Eternal Triangle" and the six-foot-of-celluloid kiss, it will hardly do to shoot them off the historical field which is full of strong personalities who spent their time in non-osculatory activities.

CAMERA LIMITATIONS

IT has to be accepted as one of the cardinal facts established by experience of the international film audience that the Cinema is an appeal to the eye and not to the ear; the function of the talkie is to get rid of long explanations and titles and to quicken up the action. Even the best "dialogue" film, with the best actors, will never draw a queue to the door; it will rank as "specialised" film which will appeal mightily to a select public. But action requires performers who are good at jumping on to horses or giving the villain a knock-out, but who are very versatile in drama. The Wild

LATEST NOVELTY IN AIRCRAFT CHANGE FROM BIPLANE TO MONOPLANE

WINGS FOLD BACK WHEN MACHINE IS IN AIR

(By William Courtenay)

AFTER the retractable undercarriage, the retractable wing. Such is the latest aeronautical idea from America. Mr. J. A. Mollison discovered it when searching American aircraft factories for a stratosphere aeroplane.

The Aircraft Improvement Corporation has developed the idea. By their design, an aeroplane starts off as a biplane. When it reaches high altitude the lower wings are folded back alongside the fuselage. It is then a monoplane which can cruise much faster.

Clever Mechanism
This biplane has an air-cooled engine and a closed cabin for one or two. The landing gear is retracted until only the landing wheels are partially left showing underneath the lower wings.

By cleverly designed mechanism the supporting struts between the upper and lower wings can be swung backwards and forwards. As they swing they carry the lower wings backward with them. For landing, take-off or climb, the lower wing is swung outward into position. This means that the loading of the wings in pounds per square foot will be light because double the wing area is available over which to spread the load of fuel and crew.

The take-off will be good; the climb fairly steep. But when high forward speed is required, the biplane presents too much structure to the airflow and too much resistance. This is a disadvantage. So the biplane conveniently changes itself into a monoplane, resistance is reduced, wing loading weight is increased—a fact which does not matter so much once the machine is in the air—and higher speed results.

Hong Kong Personalities

Mr. A. W. HUGHES

This is the forty-eighth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konya, the talented Hungarian artist.

MR. Arthur William Hughes, General Manager of the Union Insurance Society of Canton, is an Australian, born in Adelaide in 1888. Educated at St. Peter's College, Adelaide, he received his first experience in insurance, the business which was to be his life-work; in 1900, when he joined the South British Insurance Co., Ltd. as a junior in Perth, W. Australia, of which his father was Manager at the time. In 1906 he was transferred to the Calcutta office of the Company, where he remained for the next eight years, being moved to Manila in 1914.

In January 1916 he joined the Australian Expeditionary Force and was sent to France as one of the reinforcements for the 10th Battalion. After serving at various points on the Western Front he found himself, in 1918, in the Ypres Salient, where he was wounded. He had just left hospital and was under orders to rejoin his unit when the Armistice came. He was demobilised in 1919 in England. Mr. Hughes is perhaps the only member of the A.E.F. to be demobilised in England, an exception being made in his case because he wished to return to the Far East direct instead of wasting time by going first to Australia with the rest of the troops.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 162.

The Wonderful Glow-worm
A FRIEND recently sent me a curious-looking creature which he had found feeding on a small, or so it appeared to him. He enclosed with the specimen a very realistic sketch of the creature in juxtaposition with the small. The creature was a glow-worm, probably a nearly full-grown female larva, and the small a common land snail.

The glow-worm is a beetle—the adult male possesses wings but the female is always wingless. This creature is known to most people by the light which is emitted from the last three segments of the abdomen. It has been proved that the light is the result of a slow oxidation process and that it is remarkably efficient, being a cold light. This is one of the secrets of the animal world that is not yet understood by man. When the process is eventually explained, reproduced and commercialised, the cost of lighting streets and houses will be lowered very considerably.

Anaesthesia
The glow-worm possesses another secret, the details of which are not understood, though a similar technique has been elaborated by chemists and doctors. J. H.

Wednesday, June 26:—

Mr. N. R. Young, M.C., of His Majesty's Treasury, arrived at Government House.

His Excellency received Captain A. J. L. Murray, O.B.E., D.S.O.

The following lunched at Government House: Commodore and Mrs. C. G. Sedgwick, Vice-Admiral C. L. Chen, Brigadier H. G. Soth-Smith, D.S.O., Captain A. J. L. Murray, O.B.E., D.S.O., Commodore J. A. V. Mores, Hon. Mr. D. W. and Mrs. Tratman, Hon. Mr. H. W. and Mrs. Smith, Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotovall, C.M.G., Commander Fong, Commander Chow, Mr. N. R. Young, M.C., and

Fabre, that wonderful French scientist, studied the European glow-worm and has written about its secrets. The glow-worm lives on snails. The snail very rightly objects to being eaten by any animal, so when it takes a rest it retires inside its shell. The glow-worm having found a snail inspects it carefully and finds the edge of the mantle of the snail that has not been fully withdrawn into the shell. The glow-worm possesses a pair of mandibles, hook-shaped, very sharp, as thin as a hair and with a groove between them. Very gently the glow-worm stabs the edge of the mantle, withdraws his mandibles, pauses a little and then stabs again. After five or six stabs the snail is completely anaesthetised, for at each stab, the glow-worm has injected a minute drop of anaesthetic. The snail is not dead, however, and if left alone will recover after a few hours.

Fabre wrote, "Our operators proceed by making us inhale the fumes of ether or chloroform; the insect proceeds by injecting a special virus that comes from the mandibular fangs in infinitesimal doses. Might we not one day be able to benefit from this hint? What glorious discoveries the future would have in store for us if we understood the beetle's secrets better?"

Since Fabre's death anaesthetics have been discovered that can be injected into the patient and such are being used more and more in modern medicine. Quickness of action and localisation of effect are two of the big advantages of such anaesthetics and both these are possessed by the virus of the glow-worm.

Power Of Liquefaction
But the glow-worm possesses another secret which, mercifully for us, is not required by modern surgeons. When the snail is insensible the larval glow-worm, with perhaps two or three of his or her friends, pushes its face through the mouth of the snail's shell and proceeds to inject other substances into the body of the snail. These are not salivary juices, but secretions of the alimentary canal, and convert the body of the snail into a liquid, which is pumped into the glow-worm's body. Cockroaches pour out salivary juices over the bread or book-covers that they intend to have for breakfast, so that some of the digestion may take place outside the insect's body, but few insects probably pour out gastric juices as apparently does the glow-worm.

Fabre wrote, "The glow-worm does not eat, he drinks his fill; he feeds on a thin gruel into which he transforms his prey. When he leaves the table, the shell is found to be absolutely empty; without any protest from the hermit gradually converted into broth, it has been drained on the very spot on which the first attack was delivered."

Here are three secrets of the glow-worm; cold light, anaesthetic, liquefying fluid, none of which are understood, yet, if they were, would be of inestimable value to mankind. A poor wingless beetle, yet endowed with priceless gifts!

BATHING POPULAR YESTERDAY

MANY LAUNCH PICNICS
BEACHES CROWDED TO CAPACITY

Thousands of people took advantage of yesterday's ideal weather to go picnicking along the island and mainland seashore. Numerous launch picnics were organised by clubs and associations, and the popular bathing resorts were crowded to capacity with holiday-makers.

Six launch picnics, organised by the Methodist Church, the Sailors and Soldiers' Home, St. Andrew's Choir, the European Young Men's Christian Association, the Kowloon Tong Anglican Church, and the St. Andrew's Club, respectively, left the Police Pier between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. for their respective destinations.

The St. Andrew's Club with Mr. E. Fincher in charge, the Y.M.C.A. with Mr. E. F. Salk in charge, and the Sailors and Soldiers' Home party under the care of the Reverend E. Tribbeck, spent the afternoon at Big Wave Bay, while the St. Andrew's Choir, with the Reverend J. R. Higgs in charge, went to Joss House Bay.

Under the care of Mr. Leo, the Kowloon Tong Anglican Church party, spent an enjoyable afternoon at Clear Water Bay.

SACRED MUSIC CONCERTS

Treat in Store For Hong Kong

FORTHCOMING VISIT BY SHANGHAI SOCIETY

For the first time an opportunity will soon be given to those interested in music to hear some of the finest choral programmes contributed by the well-known Sacred Music Society of the Shanghai Cantones Union Church, members of which are arriving here on or about July 7. The programmes will be sung by some 30 well-trained voices under the direction of Mr. Fraust, the director of Mr. Fraust and of Shanghai, a talented musician of high repute.

It was only recently that the Society had the pleasure of receiving a letter of appreciation from the American Regimental Chaplain (Shanghai), couched in highly laudable terms of praise for the splendid music rendered by their members at the Morning Service held on the May 19 last at the Fourth Marines Church.

INDIAN BUSINESS MAGNATE

Mr. N. Pohoomull On Visit To Colony

ENTERTAINED TO-DAY BY LOCAL HINDUS

One of the interesting visitors to arrive in this Colony during last week was Mr. Naralidass Pohoomull, accompanied by his wife and private secretary. Mr. Pohoomull is the head of the firm of Messrs. Pohoomull Bros. of India, which has 35 branches all over the world, specialising in silk and Indian art curios.

The late Mr. Pohoomull, father and founder of the firm, and pioneer of this industry, was a close commercial associate of the late Mr. Thomas Cook, of the well known banking organisation Messrs. Thomas Cook and Sons Ltd.

Mr. N. Pohoomull is well known in India and in this Colony for his philanthropic activities. Amongst his donations are the Free Hospital, with all requisite medical supplies, in Hyderabad, where, on an average, about 2,000 people are treated annually free of charge. He has made a gift of one of his palatial houses for the sufferers from the recent earthquakes in India; he has built schools; and is a keen supporter of social work among the poorer classes of his countrymen. He is an Honorary Magistrate and a Public Trustee. Mr. Pohoomull, who is on a world tour, is at present staying at the Gloucester Hotel.

To-day Mr. and Mrs. N. Pohoomull will be the guests of honour at a tea party given at the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden by the Hindu Association and local Indian merchants.

Shanghai.

Before visiting Canton and one or two other coastal ports, the members of the Society will give concerts at St. John's Cathedral on Wednesday, July 10, at 9 p.m., at the Hop Yat Church, Bonham Road, on the 11th at 8 p.m., and at All Saints' Church, Ho Mun Tin, on the 12th at 8 p.m.

Admission tickets are obtainable free at the above Church Halls and the Tsang Fook Piano Company, but at the close of each concert voluntary collections may be taken to help the Society to defray part of their travelling expenses.

All friends—foreign and Chinese—are cordially invited.

REGISTERED PROSTITUTION TERMINATED

Licences Returned To S.C.A.

MARKED DECREASE IN RECENT YEARS

Not a single registered prostitute remains in the Colony to-day, as the result of the termination of the six months' notice given them at the beginning of the year.

The number of such women registered at the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs dwindled in the last three years from 170 in 1931 to less than 50.

At the time when the six months' notice to cease practising their trade was communicated to all inmates of licensed brothels, there existed only a handful of prostitutes, who numbered 46. These girls returned their respective licences to the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs during last week, and since Friday night have ceased to practise their trade.

The facts and figures above were elicited from the Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith, Secretary for Chinese Affairs, during the course of an interview with a representative of the Sunday Herald.

MR. RUBINSTEIN'S MASCOTS

Only One Regularly Carried Now

THE FAMOUS DRESS SUIT

Mr. Arthur Rubinstein confesses freely and frankly to a considerable proportion of superstition in the make-up. As was reported in the preliminary notice of his presence in Hong Kong, he did at one time collect a large number of mascots of various kinds, most of which were carried in a particular dress suit which he considered lucky and which he invariably wore at his concerts. But the collection grew too bulky and was gradually discarded and finally the dress suit, not being endowed with immortality, yielded to the gnawing tooth of time and had to be thrown away.

There is one mascot, however, that Mr. Rubinstein does carry with him wherever he goes. It is a little spiral of elephant hair in a small wash leather bag that slips easily into the waistcoat pocket. It was presented to him by a friend and admirer when, by missing a train, he had escaped from being involved in a terrible railway accident on the Spanish-Portuguese frontier some two years ago.

Similar Escape
Since then Mr. Rubinstein has had another similar escape. He was intending to take a certain train from Cracow to Warsaw when he met a friend, a highly-placed Minister, who insisted on ordering a special train, so that they might spend the evening together. The train, by which he would otherwise have travelled was completely wrecked in a collision, with an appalling death-roll as a consequence.

Mr. Rubinstein attributes his escape to the elephant hair. As to the other mascots, no longer carried, and the discarded dress suit, those who had the delight of listening to him last night can testify that their absence has not impaired his powers or diminished his virtuosity.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rubinstein left for Manila last evening by the President McKinley.

Why Men Require A Church

Christianity Connotes Fellowship

We Cannot Stand Apart If We Are Christians

(By The Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan)

THIS is my first article written since I landed in England. Already Hong Kong seems very far away and, by the time this appears in print, several weeks more will have elapsed. May I say in passing how much I appreciate the very kind invitation I have had to continue these Sunday talks? I only hope that they will be of some real value to you.

Having just had an English Sunday, after the lapse of three years, the fact is borne in upon me that churchgoing at home seems to be at a greater discount than ever. It is true that here and there one comes across churches with good congregations but, taking organised Christianity as a whole, the emptiness of the churches is an obvious fact. And the reasons are many and various. How often one hears the remark—'one has heard it in Hong Kong as well as at home—'Why is it that so-and-so never darkens a church's door, and yet the purity of his life, his amazing self-sacrifice, and so forth, simply puts to shame the life of many an ardent and regular churchgoer? Has one to belong to a Church to be a Christian or can't one be just as good a Christian outside?' What is a Church?

In order to find an answer to this question, we must get two things perfectly clear. First of all, what do we mean by a Church? For present purposes the Church means any religious fellowship, or any body of organised Christianity—not referring to any special brand. The second thing we must get clear is, what do we mean by a Christian?

For present purposes again, it means one who believes in the Deity of Jesus Christ, and who seeks to follow His teaching and way of life. It is a definition that may be criticised—but, honestly and truly, nothing less will do. It is no good mincing matters: a vast number of people who would be highly annoyed if they were called heathen yet value their Christianity so little that it means nothing to them, and makes no demand either upon their lives or their time.

The question therefore can be interpreted 'Must one who believes in the Deity of Christ, and who puts His teaching into practice, belong to some religious fellowship?' The First Church

In answering that question, let us leave entirely out of account one very important fact, namely, that Christ Himself was a great churchman—that He went up to the Temple, and took part always in the worship of the synagogue. This in itself is a pretty strong argument in favour of church attendance. Leave that on one side, and press in to a further question as to whether He wished and expected His followers to band themselves into a fellowship—in other words into a Church.

years ago.

Similar Escape
Since then Mr. Rubinstein has had another similar escape. He was intending to take a certain train from Cracow to Warsaw when he met a friend, a highly-placed Minister, who insisted on ordering a special train, so that they might spend the evening together. The train, by which he would otherwise have travelled was completely wrecked in a collision, with an appalling death-roll as a consequence.

Mr. Rubinstein attributes his escape to the elephant hair. As to the other mascots, no longer carried, and the discarded dress suit, those who had the delight of listening to him last night can testify that their absence has not impaired his powers or diminished his virtuosity.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rubinstein left for Manila last evening by the President McKinley.

After the Resurrection, He deliberately, and often, took His little band of disciples apart from the crowd, to give them special teaching. He committed to them the care of that teaching, and ordered them to spread it throughout the world, and to baptise those whom they converted. Within a few years of His Ascension (and still keeping to the New Testament) we find that His Apostles had done this. They had gone throughout the Roman Empire and in place after place they had gathered together little bands of converts; in plain words they had established Churches.

The Lord's Prayer

If you study the Gospels with only ordinary care, you will find that He took it for granted that His followers would meet together for prayer and worship. When He gave them His pattern prayer, He taught them to say 'Our Father,' not 'My Father'—a prayer obviously to be said in company with others. He promised a special presence of Himself with two or three were gathered together in His Name. He gave them the Last Supper so that at a common meal they might more easily remember His death and Passion. Obviously, therefore, He expected that Christian fellowship would come into being—in fact you cannot eradicate the idea of 'Church' from the Epistles and leave very much.

We must remember too, that every Christian is ordered by Our Lord to see that His teaching is spread across the world. You can't love Christ without wanting others to love Him too. I quite fail to see how the so-called Christians outside the Church can do this. How many of us can give up the ties and responsibilities that are ours, and push off into the interior of China on missionary work? On the other hand others can go. But how can they, unless there is some centralised body to collect funds and train them?

Isolation Impossible

Or again, how is it possible to bring in that Kingdom, of which Christ spoke so much, unless those of us who love Him get together to help to bring it in? A large part of human history is the story of co-operation of men with the same aims, forming themselves into a brotherhood to extend their principles. Exactly the same thing applies to Christianity. An isolated Christian is a contradiction in terms.

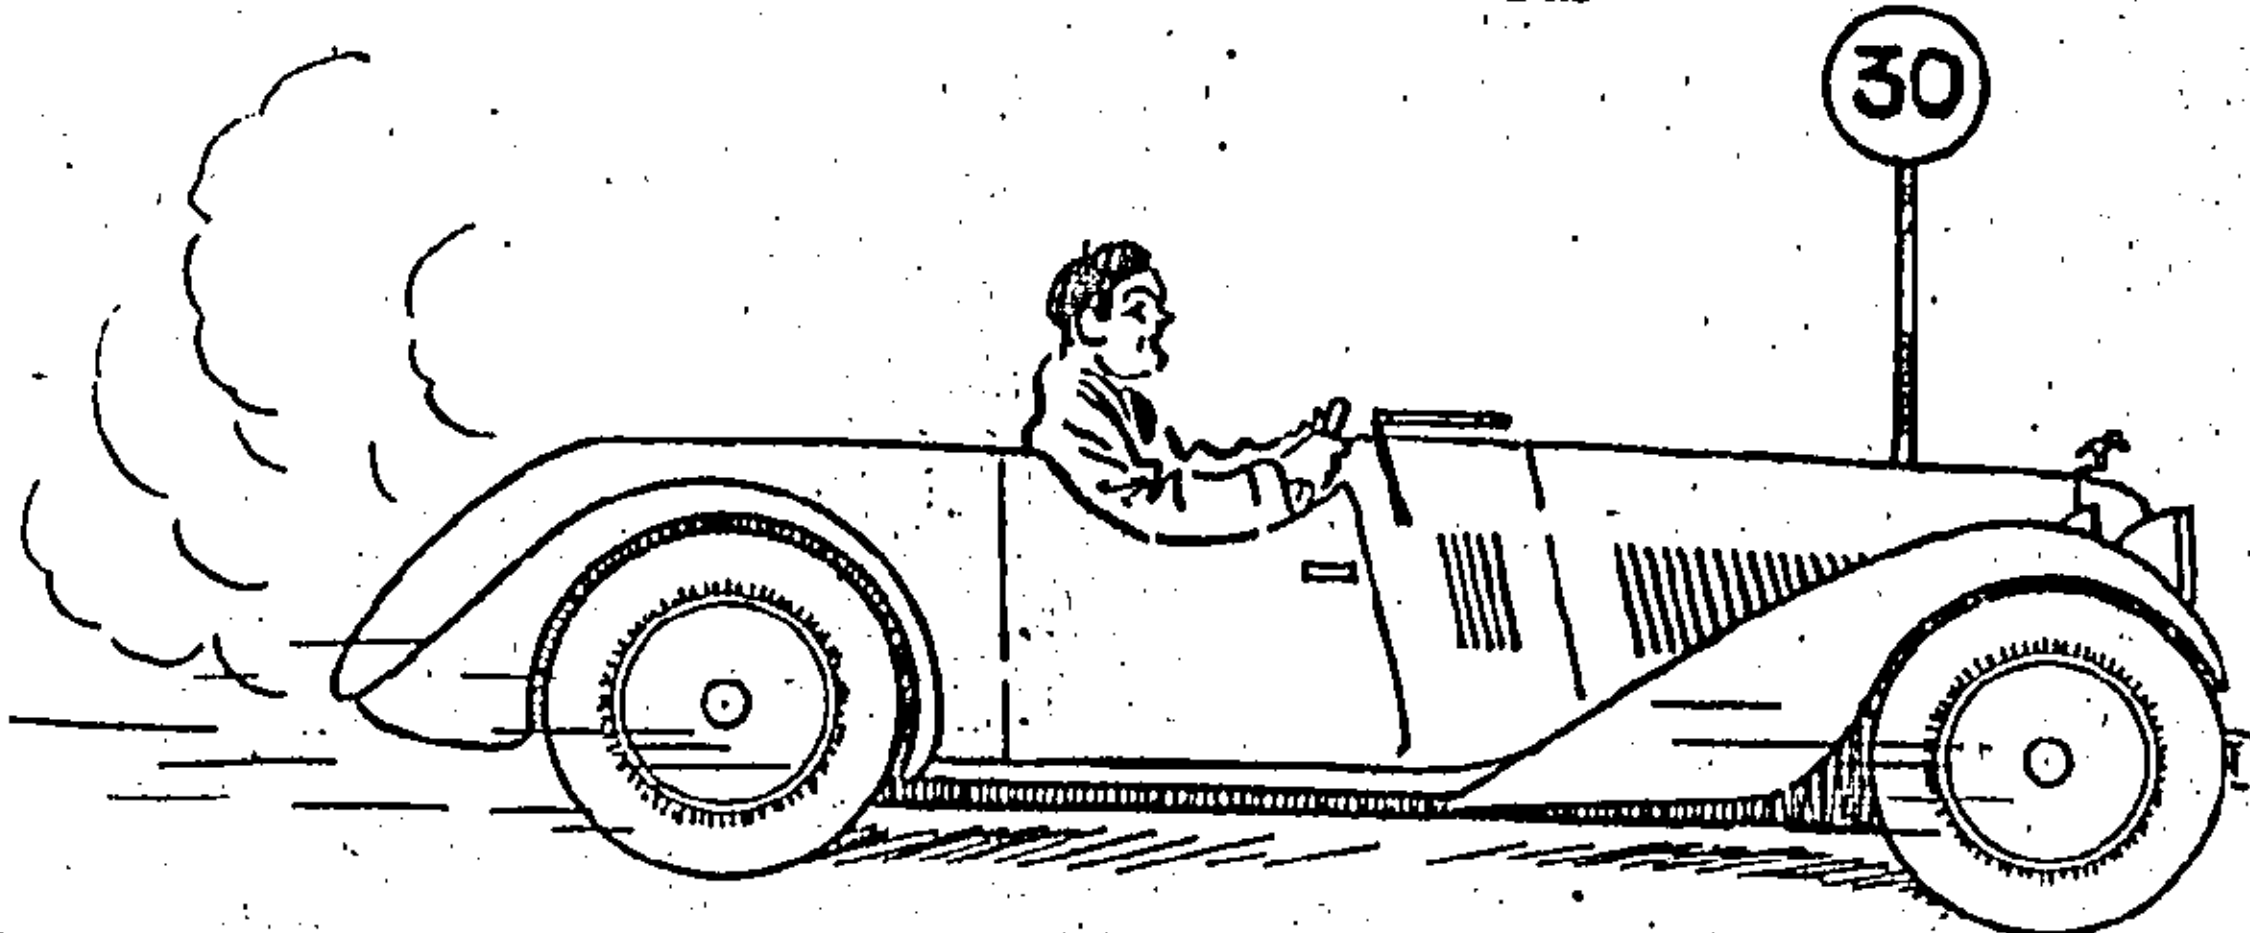

Surely too? Churches of some sort are essential in order that men may know what to believe about God. Heresies have flourished from the first, and it has been the Church all along, by its creeds and pronouncements, which has kept pure and clear the right teaching about God.

Need Of Public Worship

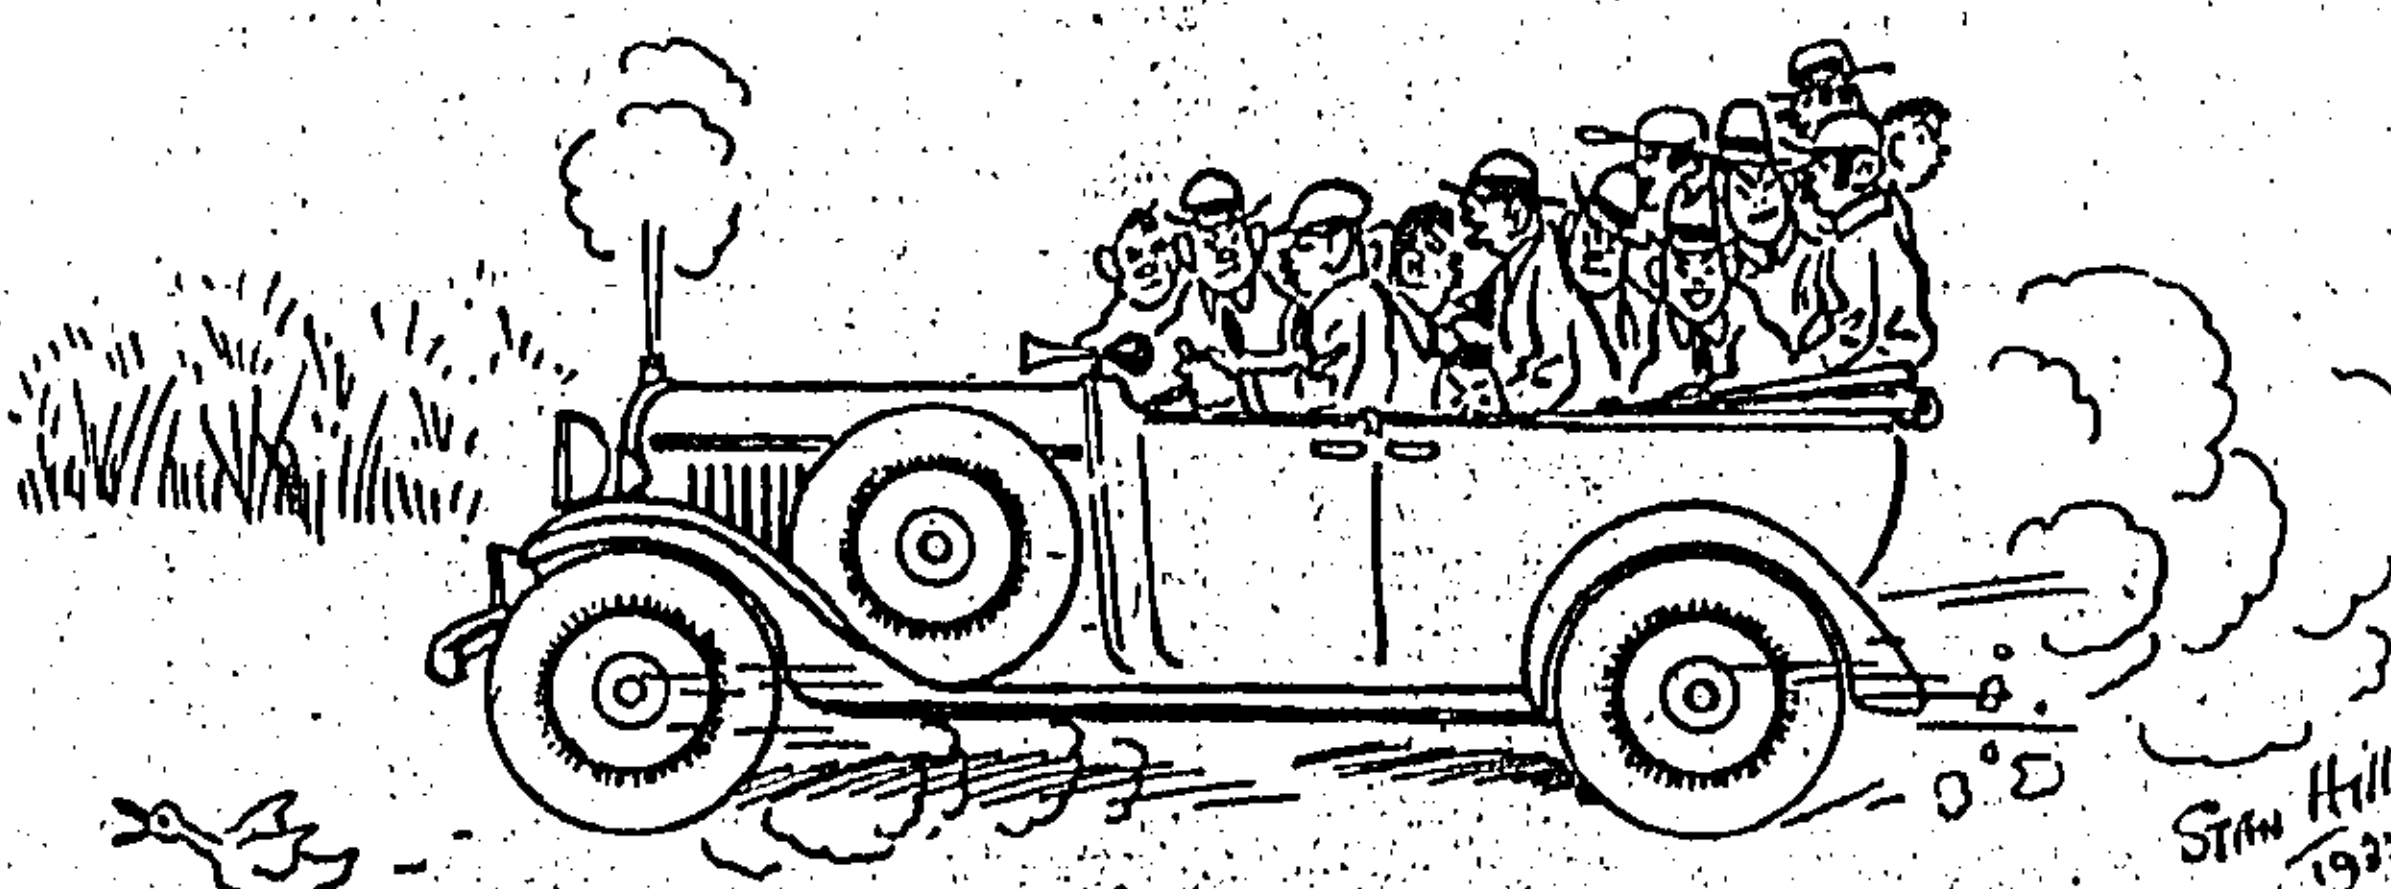

Surely, too, public worship is essential in these days of frenzied rush and worry, and man needs the peace and quietness in his inner being that only religion can give. Public worship is a necessary corrective. It balances the strain and stress of modern life. One is not for a moment pleading that it is impossible, outside the Churches, to be good and kind and self-sacrificing. One does not say that the Churches are perfect—we all know churchpeople who are disagreeable and bitter and perhaps hypocritical.

The question whether a Christian must be a churchman is best answered by churchpeople themselves. They will tell you that when they do not go, they feel they have missed something—that life for them is not quite the same. The services may be dull, the Minister boring, the singing awful, but these things are, after all, of minor importance. It is the experience of those who go in the right spirit that they do meet God and feel Him near them. And that is all that really matters.

LIFE INSURANCE— an Impregnable Wall

THE world has witnessed some sad economic experiences in recent years. Financial safeguards which were thought strong and trustworthy have proven weak and flimsy. You owe it to your dependents to build a substantial reserve against adversity; to protect them against future financial hazard. Millions of people live serenely behind the security that life insurance offers, that impregnable wall of defence against economic disaster. You can create, at age 30, a ten thousand dollar estate, under our Guaranteed Maximum Protection Policy, for $220.00 yearly. In lieu of a lump sum payment, the proceeds will be paid in regular monthly instalments, if desired.

LANE, CRAWFORD CO. MEETING

$11,214 DECREASE IN PROFITS IN 1934 REORGANISATION SCHEME OUTLINED

A profit of $81,364.93, a decrease of $11,214.17 as compared with 1933, for the year under review was reported by Sir William Shenton, Chairman of the Board of Directors at the thirteenth annual general meeting of Lane, Crawford, Ltd., which was held yesterday morning in the Company's offices.

The Chairman was supported by Mr. E. J. Davies, Mr. E. M. Raymond and Mr. J. H. Taggart, Directors, and Mr. J. W. Brown, Manager and Secretary. Shareholders were represented by Messrs. F. W. Stapleton, P. H. Suckland, H. B. L. Dowbiggin, O. F. Ribeiro, Jr., A. M. Deen and F. C. Barry.

The Chairman, Sir William Shenton, in his review of the year, said:—

"Before proceeding with the ordinary business of this Meeting, I desire, on behalf of your Board, to place on record an expression of profound regret at the death of Mr. J. P. Warren. The late Mr. Warren joined the Board of this Company in March 1929, and served thereon until shortly prior to his death. During his period of office on your Directorate, Mr. Warren rendered valuable service to your Company, and his passing engenders a genuine feeling of regret. "Turning to the Accounts, you will observe that the Profit on working for the period under review amounted to $81,364.93, as compared with $92,579.10 for the preceding year, or a decrease of $11,214.17. This decline is attributable to diminution in turnover, consequent upon the prevalent depression, coupled with the rise in exchange and the repercussive effect these factors bring to bear upon the spending power of our clientele.

"Passing to the debit side on the Profit and Loss Account, the only headings appearing to call for comment are Repairs and Renewals and Depreciation; in the case of the former item, a material reduction in expenditure is displayed vis-a-vis the figures covering previous years, and in the case of Depreciation, the amount written off conforms to our established practice based upon the residual life value of the declining assets as detailed under the relative headings in the Balance Sheet.

Bakery Modernised

"The Balance Sheet in your hands reveals few changes, and you will observe that the fixed assets stand at the figure of $2,475,984.54, in which relation I desire to draw attention to the fact that additions during the year amounted to $6,728.03 only, evidencing the conservative policy pursued by your Board in the matter of capital expenditure. Whilst dealing with this subject, however, I deem it opportune to direct the attention of Shareholders to the fact that the necessity for replacement of certain of our fixed assets in the immediate future must not be overlooked. In this connection I refer more particularly to the decision of your Board to centralise the Bakery in a portion of the basement premises in Exchange Building and, on effecting the requisite transfer, to bring this important department of your undertaking up to date, replete with the latest and most hygienic equipment. "Stocks and Goods in Transit have been valued by the management at cost and appear at the figure of $709,380.98. Shareholders will observe, however, that in the Report of your Auditors, annotation has been appended on the subject of the market value thereof, consequent upon the appreciable advance in Exchange. This matter has been receiving the serious attention of your Board for some time past and, as a result, it is the considered opinion of your Directors that the most prudent course to pursue in the circumstances, and particularly having regard to the nature of the business in which your Company is engaged, being essentially retailers calling for up to date goods and a quick turnover of Stocks, is to write down stocks to present fair disposal values. With a view to giving effect to your Board's decision, in this matter, it is deemed expedient that steps should be taken to completely reconstruct the Balance Sheet of the Company, in which relation your Board is in consultation with the Company's Auditors on the subject and it is reasonably anticipated that they will be enabled to lay their recommendations before Shareholders at an early date.

Sundry Debtor Decrease

"Proceeding with the other items on the Asset side of the Balance Sheet, it will be noted that Sundry Debtors represent a decrease of $25,382.40, as compared with the previous year which, in the main, is attributable to the decrease in turnover to which I have previously made reference. The decreases under the various other headings are resultant upon the incidence of depreciation—a subject with which I have also dealt.

"Turning to the contra side of the Balance Sheet, certain repatriation of personnel, consequent upon departmental reorganisation, made necessary the disbursement of $16,498.61 out of the Reserve created for that purpose last year, in which connection it will be observed that in the allocation of profit now proposed by your Board it is recommended that the balance of $9,501.59 remaining be supplemented by the sum of $6,498.61 in order to bring the amount standing at credit of Reserve for Staff Passages and Contingencies up to $10,000, thus making provision for contingencies maturing under this heading.

Mortgage Figure Reduced

"Mortgage indebtedness stands at the reduced figure of $1,600,000, as compared with $2,000,000 at the end of the previous financial period, being a reduction of $400,000. Sundry Creditors are lower by $32,511.89 and these two headings, read in conjunction with the increase in floating overdraft, amounting to $62,563.76, display a net reduction in indebtedness amounting to $79,948.13 for the financial year.

Shortly after 7 p.m. the picnic-makers returned to the Police Pier, after having thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

PICNIC TO CHEUNG CHAU

A picnic arranged by the committee of the Sports Club of the Kowloon Union Church was held at Cheung Chau yesterday. A party of over 20 left by the 2 p.m. ferry and returned, after a very enjoyable afternoon of swimming and walking, by the 7 p.m. boat. This was their first picnic of the season and its great success is likely to make picnics a more frequent happening.

Amongst those present were Mr. and Mrs. G. Phillips, who were in charge. Mrs. Offord, Mrs. G. Powell, Mrs. A. Mackenzie and family, Mrs. I. Robertson and family, Miss E. Martin, Miss R. Ingram, Mr. S. Tyndale, and Mr. Martin.

Proudly nosing her way up the North River to her newly built 1100 foot berth, the Normandie is greeted by whistles of hundreds of river craft, after shattering the trans-Atlantic record by 10 hours for a world's record. The buildings in the background were jammed with thousands of spectators.

"The Balance of Nett Profit, after applying depreciation, amount to $23,534.88 which, added to the balance brought forward from the previous year, makes a total of $35,013.38 available for appropriation, which sum your Directors recommend be allocated as follows:—

"To Place to Reserve for Bad and Doubtful Debts $ 5,599.18
"To Place to Reserve for Staff Passages and Contingencies $ 6,498.01
"To Place to Special Reserve for Building Improvements $15,000.00
"To Carry Forward to next account $ 7,915.59

"Taking, serially, the headings of the proposed appropriations, it is the opinion of your Board that the Reserve for Bad and Doubtful Debts should be augmented to the extent indicated in order that the same should stand at a figure of $10,000 as a precautionary measure against possible contingencies.

"The proposal to transfer $6,498.01 to Staff Passages Reserve is requisite for the reason I have already indicated.

Restaurant Transfer

"The provision of a Special Reserve covering Building Improvements in the sum of $15,000 is deemed advisable in view of the structural alterations undertaken in respect of the basement and first floor, consequent upon your Board's decision—following the vacating of the basement premises by the Hong Kong Stock Exchange—to transfer the Restaurant and Bakery to these premises and to incorporate therein the new Cake Department. In this connection it is proposed that, rather than resort to amortisation of such capital outlay over a length period of years, it is preferable that the cost of the requisite work undertaken should be written off forthwith from profits.

"As a result of the transfer and co-ordination of departments, it has been possible, as from March 1 last, to close down the corner shop in King's Theatre Building, thus effecting a saving of approximately $1,500 per month, and on completion of the change over of the Restaurant, which will be effective next Monday, the whole of the first floor will be made available for office premises, in which connection and having regard to the continued popularity your Building enjoys by virtue of its central location and up to date accommodation, it is reasonably anticipated that little difficulty will be experienced in renting this space. The effect of the changes indicated will, apart from improving service to our patrons, reduce the rental charges carried by the Main Store and Restaurant, and the working accounts should resultantly benefit. I may, incidentally, add that it is proposed on reopening the Restaurant in its new location, to revert to the name of Cafe Wiseman, the location and name being synonymous some 20 years ago.

Three Departments Closed

"Throughout the year your Board has pursued a policy of strict economy, both in capital expenditure and overhead charges, the full benefit of which is not reflected in the accounts under review. The Hardware, Office Equipment, and Shiphandlery Departments are being closed down by reason of the fact that such departments—due to intensive competition—have outlived the period of their profit producing capacity. As a result it will be possible to foster the business of those departments working on a profitable basis, but hitherto hampered by lack of requisite floor space permitting of expansion.

"In conclusion, I would express thanks to the staff for their loyal co-operation covering a period of much difficulty."

Reorganisation Hopes

In rising to second the report and accounts, Mr. F. W. Stapleton said: "You have all listened with interest to the remarks of the Chairman, but I regret to note that this is the second year that there has been no dividend available. I hope that the proposed reorganisation of the Company will bring the desired effect." (Applause).

The report and accounts were unanimously adopted.

Mr. E. M. Raymond was re-elected a Director of the Company on the proposal of Mr. H. B. L. Dowling and seconded by Mr. Suckland.

Messrs. Linstead and Davies were re-elected auditors for the ensuing year at a remuneration of $1,750 on the proposal of Mr. F. C. Barry and seconded by Mr. Decca.

West of Zano Grey, the Gangster and the Bootlegger, lost the attraction of novelty which dispensed with the necessity for the appalling costs of "making a star." The funny men, with very few exceptions, have not worn well after their tricks of manner had become familiar. The demand for a fixed number of new films to keep the theatres going was ineluctable and incessant, like the necessity for finding copy for the columns of a newspaper.

ALEXANDER KORDA

ONE new and ingenious escape from the toils of the net was discovered by Alexander Korda, who applied to the film the principles of professional publicity, one of which is that "publicity is always better than advertisement." His plan was to take a name which was world-famous, the mere mention of which would attract attention and custom, and then make some scenes which might equally well have been connected with an entirely fictitious character. The substantial criticism of his work is that he has deliberately evaded the scenes in the life of his heroes and heroines that made them famous, or at the most given only a glimpse of them in the background. The subject of "Clive of India" is really the domestic troubles of a man devoted to a life adventure. He was employed, not by the British or any other Government, but by a wealthy private company, and his quarrel with Surajah-ud-Dowla was that that Prince had recently seized the whole of that company's property within his territory. The final result of the trouble was that the company was placed under strict Government control. It would seem that a larger admixture of genuine history would only have added to the interest.

THOMAS' SILVER CAMPAIGN

34 SENATORS SIGN PETITION

Washington, Yesterday. Senator Thomas has announced that 34 Senators have signed a petition to President Roosevelt asking that the silver policy be carried out fully. He said that unless the silver group could obtain more vigorous Treasury action the inflationary Frazier Lemke Farm Bill would be pushed. Senator Thomas is endeavouring to gain additional signatures. His goal is said to be 40.—Reuter.

A message dated June 21 stated that Senator Thomas said that he had asked approximately 65 Senators to join him in a petition to President Roosevelt, seeking steps to offset the "campaign carried on by a country-wide gold bloc to discredit the U.S. silver policy."

Very Close Win
Another excellent race which kept the spectators keyed up to a high pitch of excitement was the Invitation Medley race over 150 metres, which was won by the Chinese Y.M.C.A. by a matter of inches from the Chinese Bathing Club.

There were several novelty events, the outstanding of which was the Arithmetic Race. This was for pairs, preferably mixed. The men carried a sum in an envelope for 25 yards, and the girls had to work the sum out and then swim back for the remaining 25 yards.

SKELETON FOUND IN EMPTY FLAT

Sick Man Who Sought Place Of Refuge

IDENTIFIED BY CLOTHING

The skeleton of a Chinese male, dressed in European clothes, which was discovered on the second floor of No. 638, Fuk Wing Street, Shumshup, at 2 p.m. last Wednesday, has since been identified as that of Wong Kam-fai, an unemployed seaman.

The deceased's father Wong Shing, a vegetable gardener of Sheng Li Uk village, Cheung Sha Wan, identified the remains by the clothes, as those of his son, who had been missing since May 11.

It will be remembered that the gruesome discovery was made by a house agent, Mr. Thik-sang, who had to force open the door of the flat, which had been vacant for several months. Beside the skeleton a basket was discovered, in which an unsigned letter was found, stating that the writer had been sick for the long time.

Apparently the unfortunate victim felt ill and entered the flat, presumably later dying in his sleep.

Air Pageant Rehearsals

London, Yesterday.—A rehearsal of to-day's Royal Air Force pageant took place yesterday in the presence of a large party of school children. The precision with which the events succeed one another is one of the proudest achievements of these displays, and as usual the programme was strictly adhered to. For example, six huge flying-boats from Felixstowe arrived over the aerodrome precisely to time, and another event demanding nice timing and

INTERPORT AQUATICS

TIENTSIN DECLINE H.K. INVITATION

No News Received From Shanghai

V.R.C. COMPETING IN CANTON THIS AFTERNOON

No further news has been received from Shanghai about the Swimming Interport but the Victoria Recreation Club have received word from Mr. T. S. D. Wade, Hon. Secretary of the Tientsin Amateur Swimming Association regretting their inability to accept the Club invitation to participate in the coming Interport owing to the time necessary for the trip. A message wishing the series every success was contained in the letter.

The Victoria Recreation Club have sent a very strong team to Canton to compete against the Canton Aquatic Sports Club at whose invitation they are making the trip.

The swimmers left last night by the night boat and will return to-night. This morning, will be spent in sightseeing and the swimming will start at 1 p.m.

Dr. Liang's Comeback

Dr. D. Liang, the centre forward in the local water polo team, has represented the Colony in the Interports as far back as 1921. He was the mainstay of the Colony side in all the middle distance events and was a first-class water polo player.

The following are the V.R.C. entries for the various events:—50 Metres Free Style W. Lawrence and H. O'Brien; 100 Metres Free Style W. Lawrence and L. Roza-Pereira; 200 Metres Breast Stroke E. M. Marques and N. Delgado; Diving, Ed. da Roza; 200 Metres Relay Race, The team will be chosen from the following: W. Lawrence, S. V. Gilling, H. L. Roza-Pereira and J. A. Gutierrez; Water Polo, E. Marques, S. V. Gilling, N. Delgado, W. Lawrence, C. Roza-Pereira, Dr. D. Liang and L. Roza-Pereira.

Macao Invitation

An invitation has been received by the V.R.C. to visit Macao on Sunday, July 14, in order to assist the Macao Hockey Club's attempt to foster swimming in the Portuguese colony by holding a carnival. This date, unfortunately, follows the date of the Club's second night fete, and while there is every indication of the V.R.C. sending a team of swimmers, it is probable that the best men may not be available. The matter has not yet been before the Swimming Committee, but if the date proposed by Macao is not suitable an alternative date may be suggested.

Among the open events to be decided at Macao is a Men's Medley Relay race for teams of four.

WADE'S XI SCORE 228

Included in his half century were four sixes and four boundaries, while he scored 52 of the 60 runs added in partnership with Wade! Dalton was dismissed when Langridge accepted a hard return at 186, the newcomer having looked set at this period with 19 to his credit.

PLAYERS PRESENTED TO KING
Following the fall of the sixth wicket the players were presented to His Majesty.

Only nine runs had been added on the resumption when Balakass fell a victim to Verity's will. 196-7-4.

With Langton partnering Cameron the 200 went up after 220 minutes, and tea was taken without further loss at 222 for 7.

Cameron being 89 and Langton 3. 3 WICKETS FOR 6 RUNS
His Majesty left during the tea interval, but there was a crowd of 30,000 present when play was resumed. The South Africans met with early disaster, for after two runs had been added, Cameron's stout-hearted effort came to an end when he had his stumps spread-eagled by an in-swinging bowler from Nichols. 224-8-0.

GIVING A CHANCELESS DISPLAY, Cameron batted for 105 minutes, scoring four sixes and six boundaries. The end was now in sight, and four runs later Langton was taken low down by Holmes at first slip off Hammond. Without addition Bell was cleaned bowled by Hammond, the innings thus coming to a close at 228 after 255 minutes.—Reuter.

A crowd of 15,000 were present in gloriously fine weather when Pica Wyatt lost the toss to H. F. Wade, who did not hesitate to bat first on a fast and perfect wicket.

The England team was as previously announced, with Clark, the Northants fast left-hander, as twelfth man. The South Africans dropped Tomlinson, Viljoen, and Vincent in favour of Balakass and Bell, two bowlers, and Dalton, a sound batsman.

MITCHELL VERY LIVELY

Siedle and Mitchell, as expected, opened the South African innings, Mitchell being very lively at the start. He followed up a three off Nichols with a couple of boundaries off Wyatt to score 21 out of the first 25 runs. Wyatt then made his first bowling change, Mitchell, the Derbyshire slow bowler, relieving Nichols.

The change met with almost immediate success, as, with only two runs added, Siedle was beaten by a top spinner from Mitchell after a painstaking innings. 27-1-6.

MITCHELL PAYS PENALTY
Mitchell forsook his earlier enterprise when joined by Rowan, and the 50 was hoisted only after 70 minutes play. Bating very cautiously, Mitchell paid the penalty for such a drastic change of style when, in playing forward to Nichols, he was given out l.b.w. under the new rule. 69-2-30.

Rowan had now become set, and when David Nourse was bowled when playing back to a good length ball from Verity he had scored 21 of the 62 runs that had been scored for the loss of three wickets.

Wade, the South African skipper, decided to take the responsibility of playing out the dangerous half hour before luncheon, and by dogged batting remained with Rowan until the interval, which was taken with the score at 79 for 3. Rowan being 27 and Wade 10.

ROWAN'S PLUCKY INNINGS
There were 18,000 present when play was resumed after lunch. England met with an early success, as with only 18 runs added Rowan, in attempting to glide a ball from Verity to the leg, was nicely taken by Farrimond. 93-4-40.

Rowan batted for 103 minutes, hitting only one boundary in the course of an invaluable fourth wicket stand of 36 runs, scored in 35 minutes.

Cameron joined Wade and the 100 was sent up after 165 minutes. Wade stonewalled for over after over, but Cameron set about the bowling in a lighthearted manner, hitting a six over square leg's head off bowling that had hitherto been so steady that it had been almost impossible to score.

1929 LORD'S TEST

In the last Test at Lord's, in 1929, the South Africans secured a first innings lead; but were with their backs to the wall when stumps were drawn, being 202 in arrears with half the side out in the fourth innings. Bruce Mitchell, who opened the innings in the present match with J. J. Siedle, scored 29 and 22, while Cameron, who will remember this ground well—he was knocked unconscious by a fast rising ball from Larwood in the 1929 Test there—scored 32 in the first innings. A. J. Bell took 6 for 99 in England's first innings of 302.

Sutcliffe, who scored 31 at Trent Bridge, contributed 100 and 10 to the England totals in the 1929 Test at Lord's, while Leyland scored 73 and 102.

RESULTS OF TOUR

The following is how Wade's team have fared this season: Beat Worcester 146 runs; Beat Leicestershire 170 runs; Beat Cambridge U. 114 runs; Beat Surrey 130 runs; Drew with Oxford U.; Drew with the M.C.C.; Beat Hampshire 110 runs; Beat Middlesex 22 runs; Beat Derby 203 runs; Drew with Lancashire; Beat Northants 144 runs; Drew with Glamorgan; Beat Cricket Club Conference 7 wks.; Drew with Lancashire; Beat Yorkshire 128 runs; Beat Staffordshire 114 runs; Centuries have been scored by Wade (2), Rowan (4), Siedle (3), Nourse (3), Cameron (2), and Viljoen.

ONLY NINE GOOD FEATS

Only nine English cricketers have achieved anything outstanding against the visitors. They are: N. S. Mitchell (Oxford) 163; R. E. S. Wyatt (England) 149; Smart (Glamorgan) 114 not out; A. B. Ann (Oxford) 90; Davies (Glamorgan) 75 not out; Nichols (England) 7 for 49; Booth (Lancs.) 6 for 49; Backhouse (Stafford) 5 for 49. Vally Hammond has hit three Test centuries against the South Africans, Leyland one, Sutcliffe six, including one in each innings at the Oval in 1929, and Bob Wyatt two.

TWO TEST CENTURIES

Mitchell, who has failed to reveal his best form this season, is one of the two South Africans now touring England who have reached three-figures against England in a Test. Siedle is the only

HOLDERS OF U.S. SECURITIES

Claims To Damages To Be Barred

Washington, Yesterday.
An administration bill to deny the holders of Government securities the right to claim damages in court actions as a result of dollar devaluation was introduced by the Chairman, Mr. Steagall, of the House Banking Commission, following President Roosevelt's special message of Thursday.

Mr. Steagall said that the measure would be taken up by the Banking Commission on Monday and reported to the House after probably two days' hearings. He said that no trouble was expected, either in committee or the House.

The bill declares that no holder of any United States money securities has suffered any damage as a result of the measures heretofore taken by the Government in its monetary programme.—Reuter.

PERMANENT GOLD STANDARD ENVISAGED

Paris, Yesterday.

A demand for the "provisional" stabilisation of exchange rates on gold is contained in a monetary resolution to be submitted at to-day's final plenary session of the International Chambers of Commerce.

The resolution, which is a compromise between the viewpoints of Britain and the gold countries, declares that stabilisation on a gold basis is imperative for world economic recovery, and therefore urges the principal Governments concerned to inaugurate, immediately, consultations for the purpose of putting into effect an agreement for provisional stabilisation, so as to enable them to take very speedy measures to adjust their national economic and financial policies so as to assure the functioning of the international gold standard over a long period.

The compromise is expected to be voted unanimously.—Reuter.

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

An earlier message states that the last working day of the eighth congress of the International Chambers of Commerce was devoted chiefly to the discussion of traffic problems and the final wording of the resolutions which will be submitted for the approval of the congress this morning.

The chief question to which this year's congress has devoted attention is that of the stabilisation of currencies. The United States delegates, in the course of the proceedings, revised their original attitude, inasmuch as they have now declared themselves to be in favour of a formula at first rejected by the British, namely, that stabilisation should be on a gold basis. A number of delegates from other countries have likewise modified their position on the same question, taken up when the congress opened.

CONFERENCE SHELVED

A motion will be laid before the plenary session to-day declaring that stabilisation of currencies can only be effected by the restoration of an international gold standard. The project of convening a conference to discuss currency matters was abandoned because it was considered sufficient for the congress to recommend the various Governments to prepare to carry out stabilisation by instituting mutual deliberations on the subject.—Trans-Ocean Service.

EUROPEAN LADY ROBBED

The victim, Mrs. Goodfellow, reports that her hand-bag, which contained a $10 bank note, and a few odd coins, was stolen from the drawer in one of rooms on the first floor of No. 21, Lock Road, Kowloon, between 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. last Friday.

Eden Reports To Cabinet

London, Yesterday.—Mr. Anthony Eden, Minister for League Affairs, was in close consultation with the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, to whom and other Ministers he reported yesterday on the results of his visit to Paris and Rome. The mission will be the subject of a statement in the House of Commons on Monday.

It is understood that as a result of the Paris conversations cordial misunderstandings regarding British policy were cleared up.

CHINESE LYRICAL GENIUS

BIRTH AND GROWTH OF POETIC ART

MODERN CONVENTIONALISM

(By Phyllis Juby)

It has been said that Chinese poetry is melancholy by nature, for the poets are concerned with the transient emotions, dwelling on the pathos of separation and the ever-present feeling of death. In their melancholy lies much of their feeling softness, the delicate suggestion and feeling that belongs to their greatest works. Nevertheless, there were poets whose singing was the exulting of the heart, who gave themselves up to "the joy of hill and stream," so much so that a single written character in Chinese came to represent joy, happiness and a song. The Chinese poem was ever valued for what it said and there has always been the feeling that what a poet cannot say in a few lines had better be left unsaid. Thus it was never necessary to write a long poem in Chinese, for these never appealed to the popular mind.

The "Book of Odes" The lyric ballads of the people have been handed down from the creative reign of the great legendary ruler Yu. These ballads, developing and growing in number until the sixth century B.C., were collected by Confucius in his "Book of Odes." Popularly known as the "Three Hundred" they made up one of the earliest classics. Among them are the odes that were commonly sung by the people and submitted to the Imperial Musicians, who judged from them the manners and customs of each State; the odes sung at ordinary entertainments; those sung on the grand occasions when the feudal nobles were gathered together; and the sacrificial odes. These naive expressions of the people give an insight into ancient conditions, into the manners, customs and beliefs of the Chinese before the time of Confucius. And, beyond all they tell us, theirs is a simple and natural beauty. The first we read of astronomy is in one of the Odes:

"The sun and moon announce evil,
Not keeping to their proper paths.
All through the kingdom there is no proper government,
Because the good are not employed.
For the moon to be eclipsed
Is but an ordinary matter;
Now that the sun has been eclipsed,
How bad it is!"

This eclipse of the sun has actually been dated as occurring on August 29, 776 B.C.

Woman in the Odes

Among those that deal with the ordinary emotions of life is one that indicates severely enough the position of women:

"Sons shall be born to him—
They will be put to sleep on couches;
They will be clothed in robes;
They will have sceptres to play with;
Their cry will be loud.
They will be resplendent with red knee-covers.
The future princes of the land.
Daughters shall be born to him—
They will be put to sleep on the ground;
They will be clothed with wrappers;
They will have tiles to play with.
It will be theirs neither to do wrong nor to do good.
Only about the spirits and the food will they have to think
And to cause no sorrow to their parents."

The plants, trees, animals, birds, fishes, insects, musical instruments mentioned in the Odes all point to the degree of knowledge and culture of the time.

Allusion and Allegory

After the death of Confucius poetry suddenly develops into a most individual art. It is as lawless as it is emotional and a good illustration of the Chinese saying, "The men of old reckoned it the highest excellence in poetry that the meaning should be beyond the words, and that the reader should have to think it out." In the fourth century B.C., Chu Yuan's famous work the Li Sao, or the Elegy of Encountering Sorrows, was taken as an example and as a result poetry became very allusive and allegorical. Rich in description, it was often of elaborate and florid style. But gradually what we call a classical influence began to make itself felt. Typical of the period are these lines of lamentation:

"The sound of rustling silk is stilled,
With dust the marble courtyard filled;
No footfalls echo on the floor,
Fallen leaves in heaps block up the door....
For she, my pride, my lovely one, is lost,
And I am left, in hopeless anguish tossed."

Women now began to appear in Chinese writing. The supplanted favourite of the Emperor composed a verse which she inscribed on a bamboo and silk fan. The phrase "autumn fan" has since come to be used figuratively in the popular language to describe a deserted wife.

Golden Age of Poetry

The Tang Dynasty dawned. During its 300 years (A.D. 600-900) the finest specimens of Chinese poetry were produced. Says a Chinese critic: "Poetry came into being with the Odes, developed with the Li Sao, burst forth and reached perfection under the Tangs." Language had become more clear and more polished; it flowed easily and musically at the call of imagination. Pleasing tones and faultless rhymes were no less important, but with the master poets they became transfigured. Rhythm and the development of theme went hand in hand; a final harmony was created between content and form. The ideal became to discard all commonplace forms, ideas, words and rhymes. Li Po, China's most famous poet, created beautiful and immortal verse:

"The birds have all flown to their roost in the tree,
The last cloud has just floated lazily by;
But we never tire of each other, not we.
As we sit here together, the mountains and I."
"You ask what my soul does away in the sky,
I inwardly smile but I cannot reply.
Like the peach-blossoms carried away by the stream,
I soar to a world of which you cannot dream."

And to show that he did express more popular sentiments, here is the first verse from a longer poem:

"What is life after all but a dream?
And why should such pothos be made?
Better far to be tipsy, I deem,
And doze all day long in the shade."
Another well-known poet of the time expresses cool and pleasant thoughts:

"The sun has set behind the western slope,
The eastern moon is mirrored in the pool;
With streaming hair my balcony I ope,
And stretch my limbs out to enjoy the cool."

Modern Artificiality

In the Sung Dynasty poetry came to play a more commonplace part; it was looked upon as merely a department of polite education. Until now poetry had made an appeal to the emotions, it had enhanced those thoughts and feelings drawn from a communion with nature. But no more did the poet rally his emotions, he but displayed his classical attainments and that "divine madness" of the earlier masters was sacrificed to form and convention. The artificiality of modern Chinese verse was born. Lyrical art was restricted to patterns of tones and rhymes and each poet wrote a patchwork of earlier poems. It would seem that the modern Chinese respect the maxim written by one of their earlier poets:

"Those who speak know nothing;
Those who know are silent."

The Old Order

Whittington. You can see why I have held on to the portrait until now. It has been in our family since 1700."

She said it with graciousness. Otto bit the inside of his mouth. "I beg your pardon?" he said. "He remembered how she had looked in 1889 when Philander Eustace had bought her the painting—a whole bird with trailing feathers on her hat, carriage boots, furs and violets and a sharp, assertive smile. He remembered thinking her then intrinsically cheap, like a fair copy of a good picture."

"The portrait," said Mrs. Eustace. "I was saying that it came to me through four generations."

She leaned a little forward and smiled gently, almost with fortitude. He saw a flash come into her eye, and for a second was afraid of her mind, and his own eye, which was betraying his good sense.

"I suppose you will now sell the portrait to some person of the new rich," she said. "Some member of the new order who needs an ancestor. Perhaps they will buy it with my own money? Who knows? Where has it gone? Into whose hands will it finally fall?"

She spoke quietly, as if noting a mystery that had no solution, like the superiority of certain persons, or the track of the clock. She smiled at Otto Troutwine to relieve his face of the extreme sadness he showed. Then she stood up and held her hand to him again.

"Good-bye, Mr. Troutwine." He looked at the milky shadows of her temples, and the sharp bone of her jaw, and the proud nose, like a rare bird's bill. Age showed her skill under the delicate tired mask. He could hardly talk with his proper suavity, for it upset him to see a copy with such authentic touches as she displayed.

"Good-bye, Mrs. Eustace. You were very good to give us the opportunity to acquire this picture." She shrugged again, and ran her hand past her thin white hair. There was no explanation. There was also no doubt that, as she stood in the gold electric light, she bore an amazing likeness to the portrait. Mr. Troutwine gathered his picture and his hat and gloves. He wished a little wildly that he had made the cheque for more money; yet there was nothing cheap about her shabby imposture. Rather, he thought, it had the strange confidence of martyrdom behind it, the nourishment of belief.

He never saw Mrs. Eustace again. But in the following season, when the Sully portrait was sold, it was no longer catalogued as "Portrait of an Unknown Naval Officer," but as "Commodore Whittington," and noted, in Otto Troutwine's respect for an extraordinary half hour, as "great-grandfather of the late Mrs. Philander Eustace, the last previous owner of the painting."

MOTERING NOTES

JUDGING THE "BODY" IN OIL

Old And New Methods Compared

When motoring was in its infancy, engine oil was judged by its performance under working conditions. If the engine failed, then obviously the wrong oil had been used; on the other hand, if it ran satisfactorily the oil was judged to be suitable. In time, these pioneers of motoring found that they could estimate, with some measure of success, the suitability of an oil without taking too great a risk with their engines. Thus, they judged the "body" of an oil by its apparent thickness and feel to the fingers when cold. The method used by Morris Motors, Ltd., whose engine factory is the largest in Europe, consists of timing the flow of 50 c.c. measurements of the oil through a standard orifice at temperatures representing "starting up," "working," and "above working."

PLUGS CLEANED BY SAND BLAST

New Method Takes Ten Minutes

The motorist who allows dirty spark plugs to steal his car's power and speed should look around for the garage that has one of the modern spark plug cleaners in use. In less than ten minutes, he can have his full set of plugs tested and cleaned and go back on the road with clean ignition.

The outfit supplied by the Champion Spark Plug Company requires only electricity (mains or battery) and air pressure for its operation. There is a hopper, with a shelf above it, into which a plug of any size is screwed. Air pressure then blasts an abrasive compound on the plug for about ten seconds, and a blow-out jet then removes all particles of the abrasive from the inner parts of the plug. The testing part of the outfit gives the motorist visual proof.

DIFFICULTIES OF "TOP OF MOTOR" LUBRICATION

Solved By "Colgra" Superfilm Gas

GREAT PROFICIENCY IN RUNNING

During the past few months considerable publicity has been given to "lubricating gas." Public demand for greater speed and fuel economy has necessitated higher compression ratios and greater motor speeds, which means that lubrication has become a most important problem. Gasoline mileage—power—motor performance—and the life of the motor depends on it.

Leading engineers agree that the upper parts of motor cylinders are usually oil starved. Improper provision or failure of oil to reach all parts from below leaves the tops of cylinders without lubrication. Excessive wear on rings and cylinder walls and the resultant "piston slap" is thus hurried along. The valves, too, lose their efficiency if they are not lubricated properly. These are the things that must be overcome by "top motor" lubrication.

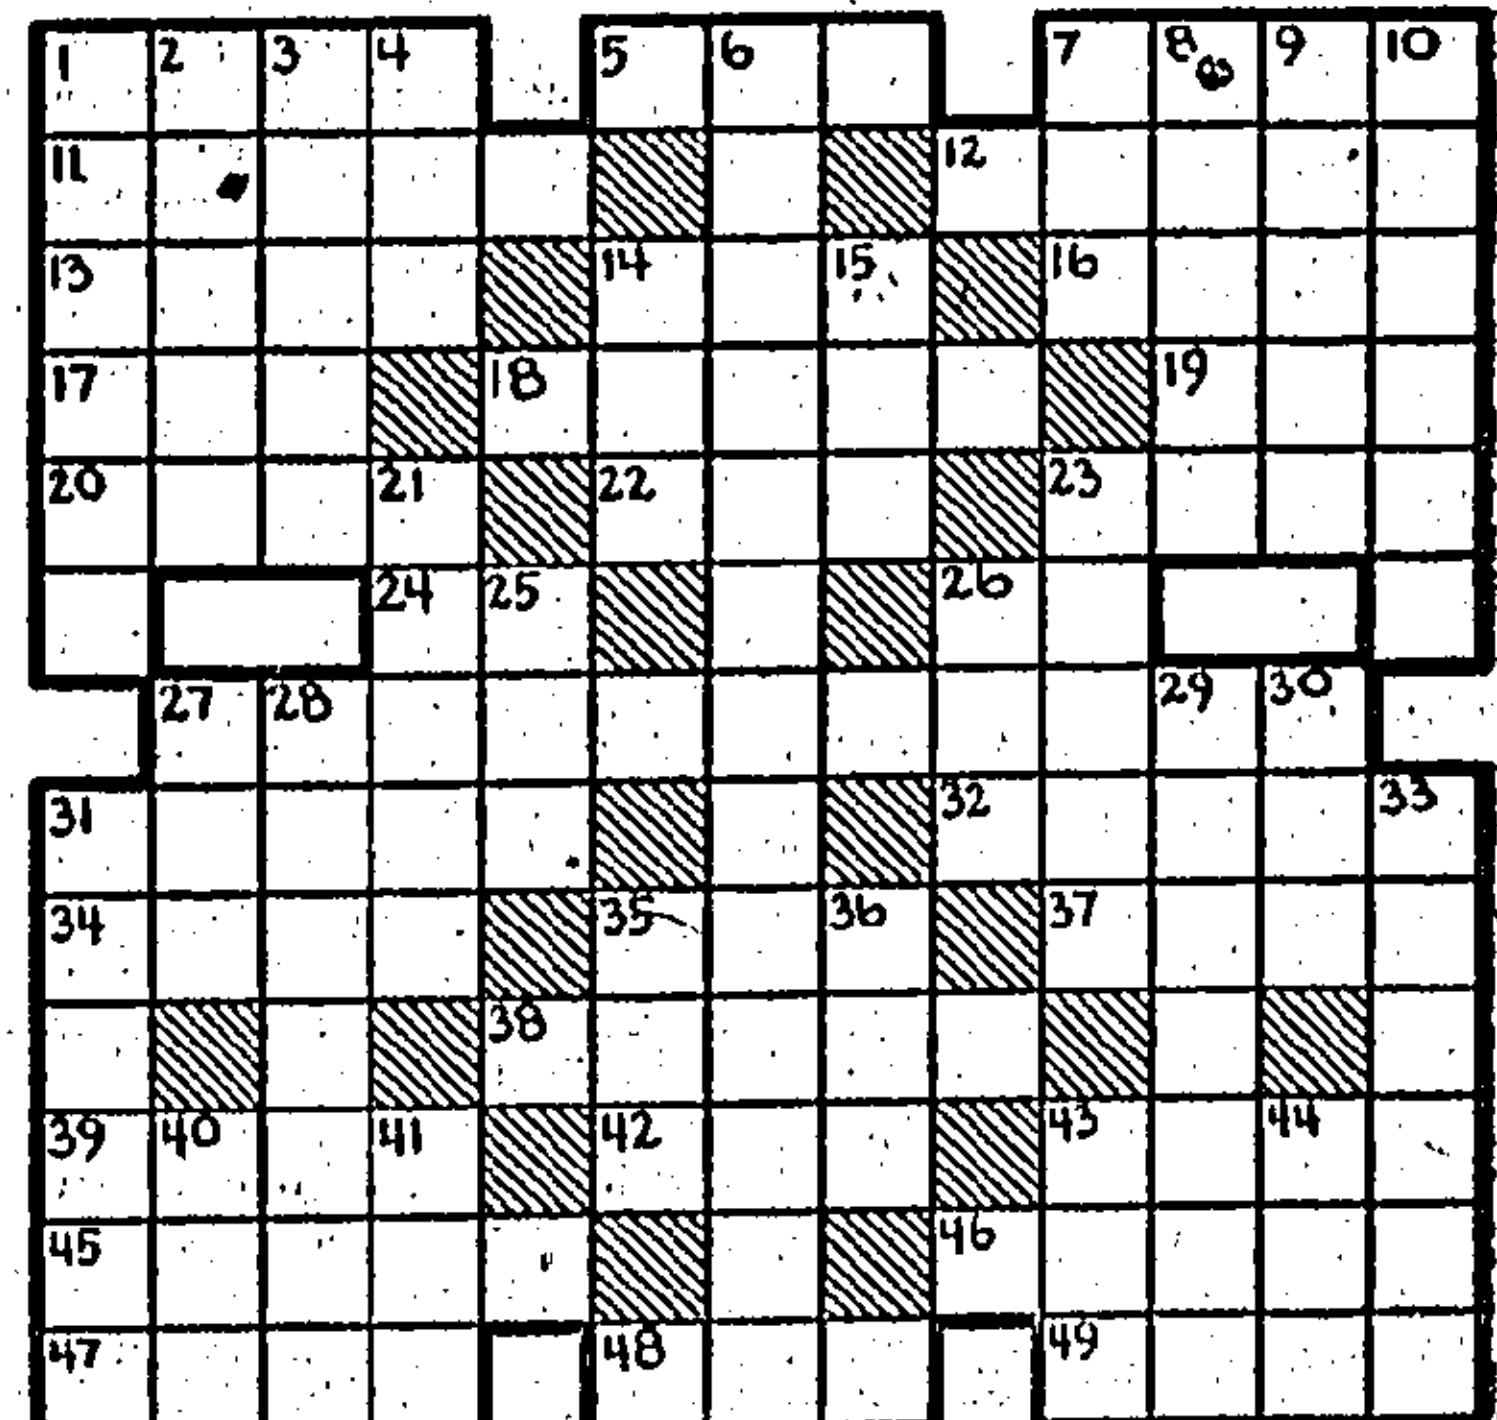

Some Difficulties In attempting to lubricate the top of the motor with oil, however, difficulty has been met with due to the extreme high temperatures. At the firing point of a gasoline engine, the explosion temperature may run up to 2,700 degrees F., and the average heat at the cylinder wall is 950 degrees, twice the flash point of good motor oils. Thus it will be seen that no oil can lubricate at this temperature.

If the oil is too low in flash test, it will not remain on the surfaces long enough to lubricate, but will vaporize as soon as it touches the heated surfaces, often leaving a sooty deposit on the "spark" plugs and inside of the motor. If the oil is too high in flash test, it will carbonize and form a hard crust of burnt oil on the piston rings and around the valves, interfering with their action.

Do Bluff Bids Pay?

By Lieut.-Col.
H.M. Beasley

IN certain conditions bluff bids definitely do pay. But it is only an expert and a good psychologist who can choose the right moment for their introduction.

Before you indulge in bids of this order you must have a fairly good idea of the effect they may have, both on your opponents and your partner, and be able to extricate yourself from any impending disaster.

In the recent Southport British Bridge World Congress a very amusing and profitable psychic was indulged in. From the hand as shown, West is dealer and opens the bidding with One Club. North, with a good long spade suit, as a rescue bid, bids One No Trump. East passes, and South bids Two No Trumps, where the bidding stopped.

Now, to bid Two, one is supposed to be able to take at least eight tricks. In this case the bidders did not take a single trick.

East's opening lead was a small heart, which West took with his knave; he then played his king of hearts, and then a small heart.

After hearts were all taken out, he started with the Clubs, and as will be seen took thirteen tricks, against a two No Trump bid—down eight tricks not doubled—400 points, while East and West could easily have made a game in hearts or diamonds.

North:

East:

Then there is the other form of psychic—the well-timed double over opponents' bid before partner has had a chance to say anything. This double has been inherited from the older game of Auction.

In the hand below, my friend,

WELCOME GIFT FOR JUBILEE

"Ovaltine" Employees' Happy Surprise

Recently a pleasant surprise awaited the thousand or more employees of A. Wander Ltd., the manufacturers of "Ovaltine." Every person employed in the Factory at King's Langley and at the Head Offices in London received an additional week's wages—in celebration of the happy coincidence by which this Silver Jubilee year also marks the completion of 25 years since "Ovaltine" was first introduced to the public.

The rapid advance in popularity of "Ovaltine" since 1910 has been outstanding, for it is to-day the most widely used food beverage, not only in Great Britain, but throughout the world. It is regularly used in the leading Hospitals and Nursing Homes, and was prominent during the Great War, when it was generally used in hospitals at home and in the field—particularly as a food for nerve-shattered soldiers.

"Ovaltine" has also figured in many memorable feats of endurance. It was chosen for use during all the leading Antarctic and mountaineering expeditions, and many famous long-distance fliers have freely acknowledged its remarkable sustaining properties.

By their gift to all their employees, the proprietors of "Ovaltine" have provided a very practical and fitting memento of 25 years of successful accomplishment and public service.

While a game was saved, it was too expensive. Here is a bad psychic, as South should, before doubling, have a hand with either a long suit for rescue purposes or, in its place, a sufficient number of high cards for an original or opening bid.

If you want to try out your luck on these intriguing bids it is well to choose the right moment, and, of course an understanding partner. When your partner has passed, and the opponent has bid, this is the psychological moment, if you must bid one of these. However, be prepared, as partner may take you seriously.

DIFFICULTIES OF "TOP OF MOTOR" LUBRICATION

It will thus be seen that no oil, no matter how good it may be, can possibly withstand the intense heat at the top of the motor. Something more than oil is required.

What Colgra Does

Here is where Colgra Superfilm is needed. While it has marvellous penetrating qualities, it is more than just a good penetrating oil. It has the property of lubricating the valves, guides, pistons, cylinder walls and rings with an unmeasurable film of Colgra Superfilm which is unaffected by any motor operating temperatures.

Some of the Colgra Superfilm ingredients are manufactured at 7,500 degrees F., so it can be seen that while motor temperatures are severe on oil in the factory at King's Langley and at the Head Offices in London received an additional week's wages—in celebration of the happy coincidence by which this Silver Jubilee year also marks the completion of 25 years since "Ovaltine" was first introduced to the public.

Some Advantages

With a Colgra Top Oil and regular use of Colgra Superfilm, you can be assured of added speed, added power, and above all every extra possible mile from the gasoline used in your car. Colgra Superfilm top motor lubrication provides free acting and snug fitting valves, properly lubricated rings, pistons and cylinders—lubrication that means so much for better compression, more power, quicker acceleration, increased gasoline mileage and less carbon. In addition, Colgra Superfilm penetrates and burrows through hard carbon formations, softening and loosening it, permits such freed carbon to be blown out with the exhaust, and leaves the motor cleaner and free of hard troublesome carbon, reducing pre-ignition.

MODERN MARVELS OF SCIENCE

Watch Analysing Device

RECORD BY "PICTURE" OF IRREGULARITIES

Radio principles applied to widely separated fields have made possible the development of two remarkable detecting devices. One is a watch analysing mechanism which checks time-pieces and automatically prints a case history picture of any trouble, and the other is a "weapon detector" system for prisons which automatically sets off an alarm when it is attempted to smuggle in weapons.

The watch analysing device, named a Chronograph by its sponsors, was described in a joint paper presented before the Institute of Radio Engineers in Philadelphia, by Charles J. Young and Maurice Artzt, R.C.A. Victor research engineers from Camden, New Jersey. Dr. David Luck, also of the R.C.A. Victor laboratories, delivered the paper on the "gun detector" device and was assisted by Ray G. Shankweiler in a working demonstration of the apparatus.

The development of the Chronograph system is a direct outgrowth and makes use of the technique of "still" picture transmission by radio. With this device, the time-keeping capabilities of a watch, within an accuracy of one second a day, can be determined in a single minute as compared with many hours required with methods now in use. Moreover, it supplies a "written" picture record of any irregularities which may impair the satisfactory operation of the timepiece.

Ticks Amplified

The watch to be checked is placed on a special microphone case, which picks up the ticks and carries them to an amplifier system. The amplifier ticks are then made to actuate the printer recorder mechanism. If, as the paper moves along, the marks produced by the ticks waver, or deviate from a predetermined straight line, the watch is shown to be either fast or slow, depending on the extent of the deviations, and the number of seconds it is in error may be computed at once. According to the R.C.A. Victor technicians, an error of one part in a million may be recorded and measured in about eight minutes of testing, which error would show as a deviation of 1/32 of an inch in slightly over 16 inches of record.

Irregularities in the action of the watch are interpreted in terms of corresponding irregularities on the printed record. Because of its elaborate nature, the Chronograph watch analysing system will be practicable only for large watch manufacturers, they said.

Radio "Gun Detector"

Following Dr. Luck's technical description of the "weapon detector" an actual demonstration of the device was staged for the benefit of the engineers. A specially constructed door passageway was brought into the room, and a man with a concealed revolver walked through. Instantly, as he stepped over the threshold, a warning red light flashed on at the operator's control box.

It was explained that the mechanism might be adjusted to set off an alarm, turn on floodlights, or automatically shut the door leading from the room.

The system consists mainly of three parallel loops concealed in the framework of the doorway, and connected to a control box. A flow of voltage set up in the centre, or driver loop, is picked up by the two outside loops, spaced at equal distances apart to create a perfectly balanced circuit. The introduction of a metallic object such as a gun, flies, or a knife will upset the delicate balance of the circuit, and cause an alarm to be given. The device is absolutely harmless and, unless it is desired, persons passing through will not know they are being examined.

Another feature of the new device is that through the use of a cathode ray tube in the control unit, anyone may adjust

NEW RECRIMINATORY MESSAGE TO NANKING

CONSIDERABLE AREAS FLOODED BY WEST RIVER

RELIEF MEASURES UNDERTAKEN

PEOPLE MIGRATE TO HIGHER LEVELS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday. Extensive damage has been done by the floods to several towns along the West River. Charitable institutions to-day sent foodstuffs and medical provisions to the affected area.

The towns inundated by the rise of the West River are Fushan, Shamshui, Hsueh, Kowling, Kow-yao and Wuchow. All the surrounding districts were flooded and presented the appearance of a vast lake. The water either swept over the dykes or destroyed them.

People in those towns had to migrate to the mountains, or lived on roof tops, for the floods rose as high as five to seven feet. The water has been subsiding for the past four days, thanks to the cessation of rain. The flood, however, will return if there is more rain in the next few days.

Streets and houses have been damaged by the inundation. Cattle and poultry were washed away by the flood, while old houses collapsed after the water had undermined their foundations. As it is impossible to expect considerable relief from Canton, the local authorities have to devise ways and means for rehabilitation and repairs.

NATURAL HISTORY IN GERMANY

New Protection Laws Suggested

LANDSCAPE TO BE PRESERVED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.

Very cogent reasons for the promulgation of laws for the protection of animals and plants in their natural state in the Reich were advanced by the General Forestry Master, Herr von Kendorff, in addressing pressmen to-day. The German landscape, he said, had been frequently devastated in past centuries through rapid industrialization and also many unwise measures affecting forestry and agriculture. A great part of the German forests had been converted into deserts, he said, and a new danger has arisen at the present moment through the work undertaken in the campaign for the unemployed, land drainage, road building, etc.

Regulations for the whole Reich will be secured by the proposed law for the protection of nature. The landscape will be definitely preserved, and rare and beautiful flowers protected. Above all, the new motor roads now under construction will be bordered throughout by beautiful trees or national forests. — Trans-Ocean Service.

TWINS BORN TO ELDERLY VILLAGE PAIR

whether the two babies are boys or girls.

The parents were engaged in farming work, and the birth of the twins was quite unexpected.

The medical profession in the village is taking a special interest in the unusual case, as they are nonplussed as to how such an old woman could have given birth to twins.

Splendid in her brilliant wedding gown and her face aglow with the joy of the occasion, Princess Ingrid of Sweden waves to cheering throngs as she rides to Stockholm church for her wedding to Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark.

VIOLATIONS OF TREATIES BY LEAGUERS

QUESTION OF SANCTIONS

COMMITTEE UNABLE TO AGREE

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Geneva, Yesterday.

The sub-committee of the League of Nations Council for the study of legal questions connected with the prevention of the violation of treaties concluded their labours yesterday, but have published no report yet because agreement on certain essential matters was not attained.

From the League of Nations Secretariat pressmen learn that the committee members were at one merely on the principle that measures should be taken against a State that breaks treaties insofar as the scope of the League of Nations Covenant provides, but no agreement was reached on the far more important question of whether the League of Nations must decide such sanctionary measures unanimously or by the vote of a simple majority. The reason was that the French delegates advocated a decision by a mere majority, whereas all the others demanded the retention of the principle of unanimity. — Trans-Ocean Service.

GENERAL TSAI IN SHANGHAI

MOTIVE FOR VISIT UNKNOWN

SECRET DEPARTURE FROM COLONY

It is authoritatively learned that General Tsai Ting-kai, famous ex-commander of the late Nineteenth Route Army, has secretly arrived in Shanghai, and it is believed that he is at present residing at the Cheong Chau Hotel there.

It is not known when he left the Colony, and what his aims are in Shanghai, as his friends and relatives here have refused to give the press any information. General Tsai arrived in the Colony on April 19, completing the round-the-world trip on which he embarked shortly after the collapse of the Fukien Revolution in November, 1923. In spite of his connection with the revolution, his courage in resisting the Japanese in the Shanghai war in 1922 is still remembered, and he continues to be acclaimed as a national hero.

RELATIONS BECOME FURTHER STRAINED

WEAKNESS OF POLICY IS AGAIN DEPLORED

"WHOLE NATION WOULD BACK UP RESISTANCE" STATES TELEGRAM

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

Canton again demanded that Nanking should ward off Japanese aggression in a telegram sent yesterday afternoon to the Central Authorities, as "continued procrastination will lead to national ruin."

The relations between Canton and Nanking have been further strained by the dispatch of this second telegram. The first telegram was sent on June 22, enquiring whether the Japanese domination of the North is based on the Tangku armistice signed on May 31, 1933, and why the Blue Shirts, charged by the Japanese to have perpetrated anti-Japanese terrorist activities, are not suppressed.

The Central Authorities sent a reply on June 26 stating that they would not change the principle of maintaining the territorial integrity and political independence of the country, adding that suggestions from the South-west would be welcomed in view of their close concern in national affairs.

"If the Central Authorities would resist aggression," the second telegram said, "the whole nation would back you up to a man. You cannot say that political independence and territorial integrity have been maintained when Japanese demands for the dismissal of high officials in Hopei and Chahar, the abolition of the Kuomintang organs, and the demilitarisation of those two provinces are accepted."

"It is no use deceiving the nation. The only means of saving the country lies in going to the fire and extinguishing it, and in seeking life out of death."

The message was sent in the name of the Kuomintang South-West Executive Committee.

Political observers here concede that Canton stands in a sound logical position and that Nanking believes it cannot resist Japan until China is consolidated. Further political developments are expected here, as it is now definitely established that the absence of Mr. Hu Han-min from Hong Kong does not alter the political position of the South-west.

ROBBERY WITH VIOLENCE

Woman Maltreated By Three Men

MRS BAY INCIDENT

Three men, armed with knives, managed to escape shortly after 1 a.m. yesterday, after robbing a married woman, Li Fung, of over $127 in money, jewellery and clothing, on Ping Chau Island, Mrs Bay.

In her report to the police, the woman stated that she was awakened by the noise of the main door of her house being forced open. Three men entered, and after binding her hands and feet with cord, began to ransack the building. Before leaving the place they untied her and bolted the door from the outside.

Shouts from the victim soon brought her neighbours on the scene, but the robbers had got away and have not yet been traced.

SAKDALISTAS SENTENCED IN MANILA

SEQUEL TO P.I. REVOLT

PRISON TERMS RANGE FROM 2 TO 17 YEARS

Manila, Yesterday.

Sentences ranging from two to 17 years' imprisonment were passed on 87 Sakdalistas convicted of rebellion early in May. — Reuter.

A message dated May 4 stated that after a night and day of terror Manila and the surrounding provinces were still tense that evening, though the indications pointed to the fact that the Sakdal uprising had been controlled. The two towns where the outbreak reached its peak were Cabuyo in Laguna province, and San Ildefonso in Bulacan province, in both of which the Sakdalistas actually captured the municipal buildings and raised the Sakdal flag, and more than 200 people were formally accused of sedition.

While heavily armed police patrolled Manila all night the police stations were crowded with reserves and the barracks of the Manila garrison were on the alert. Up to midnight no trouble had been reported. A heavy thunderstorm shortly before midnight lessened the danger of rioting in Manila.

A final check-up of the earlier fighting showed that among the constabulary two men were killed and 12 wounded, while the Sakdalistas lost 65 killed and 82 wounded. One policeman and five bystanders were also wounded.

The Under-Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Quinto, was said to have informed the people that they had nothing to fear now. Everything was under control, he asserted, and the constabulary authorities had the situation well in hand.
